Eye-Witnesses Can Raise Alarm

Woodriver, Ill.—(P)—In a swift, well-organized holdup, three men, two of them armed with sub-machine guns and the third with a revolver, robbed a bank messenger of $34,000 today.

The men seized the money from Ralph Welsh, an assistant cashier of the First National bank of Woodriver, and fled in an automobile before startled eye-witnesses could raise an alarm.

The money, intended to meet refinery company bills, had been mailed by the federal reserve banks of St. Louis and Chicago. Following a regular procedure, Welsh, accompanied by his father, Arthur Welsh, a guard at the bank, had gone to the Woodriver post office to get the shipment.

Welsh came out the side door of the post office, pitched the money, in three cloth bags, on the floor of his car and was about to get in when the holdup men drove alongside. They were in a black Ford sedan which bore Illinois license 115-407.

Describes Robbery

"The man in the back and the driver both had machine guns, which they pointed at me," Welsh said. "The third man, who was riding next to the driver, got out, carrying a revolver and said, 'don't you move.'"

"As he came up to me I put up my hands, but he said, 'don't do that. Put them down.' Then he walked over to the car and poked the revolver in father's stomach and said, 'where's the money?'"

"Father tried to hide the sacks with his feet, but the robber saw them and picked them up. One of the other men called out, 'get the keys, too, Hamilton.' He reached in, but the keys were hard to get out of the lock and he left them, jumped back into the car and the robbers drove away."

In Indianapolis yesterday, two men, one of them armed with a sub-machine gun, made an unsuccessful attempt to rob two pay roll messengers. Police there renewed a search for Floyd Hamilton and Hudson Ted Walters, bank robbers of the southwest.

Heat Continues in Widespread Area

Humidity Adds to Discomfort; Several Deaths.
Many Prostrations

By the Associated Press
Great areas of the United States continued to swelter today in the feverish grip of a moisture-laden heat wave.

Several deaths and numerous prostrations were reported as temperatures resumed their relentless climb after a night cooled in some sections by rain.

Seven deaths were attributed to the heat in New Jersey alone. Two occurred in Washington, D. C., before a heavy rainstorm brought relief from oppressive temperatures.

New York city's millions steamed in humidity of 98 per cent, two degrees below the saturation point, as the day's work started. Later the humidity dropped but the temperature boiled up through the 80's.

Scattered rain fell was reported in Maryland, Minnesota, Iowa, Indiana. A downpour in Louisville sent the temperature tumbling from 91 to 74 degrees early last night, but continued warm weather was forecast for today.

Thar's Gold in Them Thar Hens

Finding of 33 pieces of gold in the gizzard of a hen has started a regular gold rush in Tuncannon, Tennessee, and vicinity. George Town, who bought and killed the fowl, has joined others in trying to locate the source of the hen's gold supply. That recalls the story of the farmer who killed the hen that laid the golden egg, and cut down production to exactly nothing. Let that be a lesson to you. . . If you have anything of value, don't destroy it—sell it through Post-Crescent Want Ads.

There gold to be found in the Post-Crescent Want Ads. No matter what you have to sell, you'll find a ready market for it there.

Moscow Puts Next Move Up To Japanese

Nipponese Must Withdraw And Discontinue Attacks, Soviet View

TREATY IS STRESSED

Russia Wants Tokio to Recognize Border Established in 1886

Moscow—(P)—Soviet Russia is ready to grant Japan peace on the frontier with Manchoukuo, if the Japanese discontinue attacks upon Soviet territory and withdraw their troops.

Russia then would be ready to start diplomatic discussions on the establishment of frontier posts, but only if Japan recognizes the border established by maps attached to the Russian treaty with China on June 26, 1886. This stand left the next move to Japan.

It was Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff's reply to Japanese proposals for mutual withdrawal of troops in the battle zone, at the juncture of Russian Siberia, Japanese Korea and Manchoukuo, and for diplomatic negotiations to settle the boundary on the basis of documents possessed by both parties.

Gets Russian Reply
Mamoru Shigemitsu presented the Japanese suggestions for a truce yesterday, and received the Russian reply to transmit to his government today.

The critical situation grew from the Japanese allegation that Russian troops forfeited Changkufeng hill in the disputed area July 11.

Japan protested the hill was Manchoukuo territory. The Soviet government replied brusquely that the territory was Russia, established by the 1886 treaty maps of which Japan professes ignorance.

Following upon the diplomatic exchange, sharp fighting began and since Sunday it has been almost continuous. (Tokio dispatches said Soviet artillery was shelling Japanese positions about every half-hour today, and that Japan had made a new protest to the Soviet charge d'affaires.)

OFFENSIVE SLOWS DOWN

Shanghai—(P)—After 355 days of fighting in which Japanese advanced up the Yangtze river at an average of a mile and a quarter daily, the invaders' offensive seems to have slowed to a yardage basis.

Japanese warships concentrated their efforts today on trying to sweep mines from the river above Kiuikiang, Yangtze port only 133 miles below Hankow. They also shelled Chinese defenses on the Yangtze's south bank, above Kiuikiang.

The bombardments were preludes to Japanese infantry attacks which, it was reported, were repulsed at the foot of Shamaoshan, or Summer Hat, mountain.

The Chinese maintained that they had thwarted an attempted Japanese landing at Wucheng, on Lake Poyang, 50 miles south of Kiuikiang, while Chinese troops counter-attacked 10 miles south of Kiuikiang along the railroad between that city and Nanchang, the Chinese air base.

1,400 Return to Maytag Factory

Workers Enter Plant at Newton Under Eyes
Of Guardsmen

Newton, Iowa.—(P)—George Umbreit, vice president of the Maytag Washing Machine company, said 1,400 men, almost a full force, reported for work at the factory today for the first full day of operations under martial law.

Umbreit said the 1,400 men included more than 100 foremen. The watchful eyes of 60 national guardsmen among those returning to work, Umbreit said.

Wilbert Allison, president of the CIO union which yesterday advised its striking members to return to work.

The company shipped out three carloads of newly-made washing machines yesterday and expects to ship out 10 or 12 carloads today, Umbreit said.

The men silently entered the plant, mostly in single file. Production units soon were in operation as in any ordinary day of production. Only the guardsmen at sentry posts, in machine gun emplacements and in scout cars remained to remind this community of the three-months strike tie-up.

Grizzly Bear Escapes From Zoo but Is Slain in Park After 5-Hour Hunt

Pittsburgh—(P)—A ferocious grizzly bear that broke from a steel-barred cage in the Highland Park zoo and spread terror through the adjoining residential district was shot and killed near a reservoir in the park five-hours after her escape today.

The carcass was brought to the zoo, in the center of the wooded, 40-acre park on the banks of the Allegheny river, 10 miles from the downtown business section of Pittsburgh. A few minutes before she was cornered by searchers at the reservoir, the bear had been sighted by a park workman in a clump of bushes near

CORRIGAN WELCOMED BACK HOME

When a man named Fitzgerald meets a man named Corrigan there's bound to be a couple of wide Irish grins. It's Deputy Collector of Customs W. J. Fitzgerald (left) of New Bedford, Mass., and Atlantic Flier Douglas Corrigan. The customs man was the first officer to greet the flier aboard the liner Manhattan, which brought "nonstop" back to the United States.

Frenzied Multitudes Hail Corrigan in Triumphant Parade in New York City

New York—(P)—Young Douglas Corrigan rode triumphantly up lower Broadway today, grinning infectiously as the temperature rose and sweltering thousands cheered his progress, indifferent to the oppressive heat.

All the enthusiasm for his mad solo flight from New York to Dublin was let loose in a continuous roar that dinned upon his ears from the Battery to city hall.

The tons of torn paper and ticker tape fell, the peeping crowds yelled and shoved and Corrigan grinned, sitting on the back of an open car with James M. McGarrin, chairman of Mayor LaGuardia's reception committee, and the mayor's secretary, Stanley Howe.

In the second car rode Corrigan's brother, Harry, of Baltimore, and the latter's wife, Anita. In the next car were Walter and Steve Reich, friends who helped Corrigan service his plane at Roosevelt field in the week Howard Hughes made his round-the-world flight.

Form Flying Wedge
The impetuous Corrigan grinned, just as he had grinned earlier in his hotel suite when he insisted anew he had made an honest mistake in flying to Ireland instead of to California.

From the moment Corrigan was escorted from his hotel by police and detectives who made themselves a flying wedge through the jammed lobby and sidewalks, the yells of the crowds were in the flier's ears.

Around Hotel McAlpin in the Broadway midtown area there were thousands. The crowd was so dense

Proposes to Open County Hospitals To General Public

Milwaukee—(P)—Supervisor John Doerfler said today he would introduce at the next county board meeting in September a resolution instructing trustees of county institutions to open the county General hospital and all county hospital facilities to non-relief patients and permit them to be treated by doctors of their own choice.

Only doctors licensed by the state board of medical examiners, however, would be allowed to use the county facilities, Doerfler said.

Doerfler said his move was impelled by the proposed federal grand jury investigation of the American Medical association and the District of Columbia Medical society. Thurman Arnold, assistant United States attorney general has charged these organizations with boycotting low cost medical centers, preventing physicians from practicing in hospitals and interfering with patients' free choice of physicians.

Seven doctors affiliated with the Milwaukee Medical center have been expelled by the Milwaukee County Medical society, an A. M. A. affiliate, and barred from hospitals on the approved A. M. A. list.

Two Appear at Hearing Before Commissioner

Milwaukee—(P)—Two of 23 persons indicted by a federal grand jury at Madison on charges of illegal operation of stills were taken before United States Commissioner Floyd E. Jenkins today following their arrest by a deputy from the United States marshal's office here.

Isadore Possler, Fond du Lac, and Edwin Scharnberg, town of Harrisville, Marquette county, requested a hearing on the question of removal to Madison. It was set for Aug. 10. Each posted $1,000 bail.

Raymond Elm of Wittenberg, Wis., taken before United States Commissioner James Larsen at Shawano yesterday. He furnished $500 bond.

The removal hearing of Ben G. Finko, former prohibition agent named in the indictment, has been set for Aug. 10.

Sheboygan County Inquiry Is Sought

Pastor Predicts Committee
Will Head Movement
For Grand Jury Quiz

Sheboygan—(P)—The early selection of an executive committee to take charge of a movement demanding a grand jury investigation of vice and gambling in Sheboygan county was prophesied today by the Rev. E. H. Wessler, pastor of Zion Reformed church.

The Rev. Mr. Wessler is a leader of a group which has obtained nearly 3,500 signatures on a petition asking the judge of circuit court to impanel a grand jury. He said a goal of 5,000 signatures has been set.

The pastor revealed today that leaders of the movement for a county "cleanup" have been working secretly for months and employed several investigators to gather information.

"This information, which is incorporated in a written report, shows vice and gambling spread throughout all sections of Sheboygan county, and warrants investigation," Mr. Wessler said.

The minister said a committee had called on District Attorney Jacob Fessler and informed him of their findings, without naming the individuals. He said Fessler announced he would act on all written complaints placed before him.

The group will not release data secured, however, the Rev. Mr. Wessler said, until it is complete organized.

Desperado Slain at Hot Springs, Ark.

By Two Policemen

Hot Springs, Ark.—(P)—Trapped in a hotel room, Earl Young, 28, Lebanon, Pa., desperado wanted in four states for robbery, kidnapping, rape and murder, was shot to death today by two city policemen.

Young was identified from fingerprints by H. B. Fletcher, agent in charge of the Little Rock office, federal bureau of investigation, and Bill Caughman, Hot Springs, police department fingerprint expert.

The fugitive died in a hospital three hours after he was felled with a bullet in the head and a wound in the ankle during a gun battle with Police Captains Jerry Watkins and Ben Rogers.

Fletcher said Young was wanted for the kidnap-murder of 17-year-old Betty Schmidt near St. Charles, S. D., July 29; for kidnapping and attacking a young girl taken from Louisville, Ky., to French Lick, Ind. on July 12; and for robbery, car theft and jail breaking at Lebanon, Pa., three months ago.

Admits Leaving Scree Of Highway Accident

Marquette—(P)—Ernest Conrad, 33, Coleman garage mechanic, pleaded guilty in police court yesterday to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He is accused of running over Wilbur Commo, 61, of Coleman, late Wednesday night. Commo died two hours later. Conrad's bond was fixed at $1,000. Coroner Robert Thompson said no inquest would be held.

Infant Girl Is Killed In Truck-Auto Smashup

Antigo—(P)—Phyllis Marech, 7-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marech who live near Antigo, was killed yesterday in a collision between the Marech farm truck and an automobile driven by Walter G. Pree of Milwaukee. Mrs. Marech was severely injured in the accident, which occurred near Antigo.

Girdler Will Appear Next Week at Quiz

Called to Tell Senate Prob-
ers About 'Little
Steel' Strike

PRIVATE POLICE HIT
Non-Strikers Armed Selves
Preparing to Return
To Plants

Washington—(P)—Counsel for the Republic Steel corporation announced today that Tom Girdler, chairman of the firm, would testify next week before the senate civil liberties committee on the conduct of the 1937 "Little Steel" strike.

T. F. Patton, chief counsel for the company, arranged with Robert Wrenthorpe, committee secretary, for Girdler's appearance. He will read a statement on the company's labor policies before being questioned.

Previously Patton told the committee that Girdler intended to speak "in just as picturesquely as language" as that used by Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee (CIO), who testified that Republic's labor relations constituted "the filthiest industrial cesspool in America."

Girdler told the senate post office committee last year that Murray was a "liar." He testified in a controversy growing out of the halting of mail trucks at Republic plants by S. W. O. C. pickets.

March Prevented

In three weeks of hearings conducted by the civil liberties committee, much of the testimony about the 1937 strike has dealt with the activity of Republic's private police, the hiring of labor spies and company distributions to organizations which aided and sponsored "back to work" movements.

It heard testimony yesterday that steel workers who did not join in the CIO strike in the Youngstown, Ohio, area had armed themselves with pistols and rifles in preparation for a march back into the plant. This march was halted when the national guard was called out.

Two steel workers' wives, speaking in broken English, testified today that city police broke up a "ladies day" on picket lines at Youngstown last summer by firing tear gas shells into the crowd.

One of them, plump Mrs. Stella Krin, told the committee the gas barrage came when the women failed to comply quickly enough with orders to move along.

In English that was hardly understandable, Mrs. Erba Krepechak, testified that she was struck on the leg by one of the shells.

Two Face Murder Trial in Kentucky

Ex-Sheriff Killed, Two Men Wounded Near
Barkley Headquarters

Jackson, Ky.—(P)—Murder warrants were issued today for two men in the killing of former Sheriff Lee Combs and the wounding of two others last night on the stairway leading to Breathitt county headquarters of Senator Alben Barkley.

The wounded: Lewis Combs, brother of the former sheriff, slain in the side; Sheriff Walter Deaton, wounded in the left shoulder.

Lewis Combs is the county chairman for Governor A. B. Chandler, opposing Senator Barkley in tomorrow's Democratic primary.

S. L. Combs, father of Lee Combs, obtained warrants before County Judge Pearl Campbell for William Combs, no relation, and Waide Jenkins. Another warrant was issued for Ivin Turner charging him with "aiding and assisting" in the shooting.

The warrants were turned over to state highway patrolmen who have been arriving in large numbers to take charge of the local situation.

Mrs. Cora M. Noble, county clerk, said S. L. Combs and his two sons of the Chandler faction have protested her delivery of the talismans to county precincts earlier yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Noble said the men talked "rather loud" but that they went away.

Five Men Injured in Explosion at Shawano

Shawano—(P)—Five men were injured here last night, two seriously, when a pressure bean cooker in the Shawano Canning company exploded, scalding the operators of the cooking room. In serious condition at the local hospital are Albert Osborne and Al Duebler.

Believe Boy Shot Mother by Accident And Then Killed Self in Iowa Home

Davenport, Iowa—(P)—Chief of Police Reed Phillips, who investigated the fatal shooting of Mrs. Gladys Nash and her son, Burton, 14, said today he was convinced that Mrs. Nash was accidentally shot by the boy who later became panic-stricken and ended his life in the basement of their home.

Phillips and his investigators, reconstructing the tragedy, advanced the theory that the boy, who was at target practice in the basement, came into the kitchen and his rifle accidentally discharged, the bullet striking his mother in the head.

Crump Ticket Wins in Race In Tennessee

Cooper Nominated for Governor Over Browning in Primary

STEWART IS VICTOR

Senator George L. Berry
Also Goes Down
In Defeat

Nashville, Tenn.—(P)—The Democratic faction headed by E. H. Crump, national committeeman, and Kenneth D. McKellar, senior United States senator, won a smashing victory over Governor Gordon Browning and junior Senator George L. Berry in Thursday's statewide primary. Incomplete returns showed today.

Prentice Cooper, 43-year-old Shelbyville attorney and former state commander of the American Legion, was nominated for governor over Browning, who two years ago received the greatest majority ever given a gubernatorial candidate in this state. In the 1936 primary the governor had Crump's support.

Senator Berry bowed to A. Tom Stewart of Winchester, a district attorney general, who expressed 100 per cent endorsement of President Roosevelt's policies. The New Deal, however, was not an issue.

Hudson Also Wins
Both Cooper and Stewart had Crump's blessing, as did Mayor W. D. Hudson of Clarksville, nominated for railroad and public utilities commissioner over the incumbent, W. H. Turner.

Returns showed:
For governor—2,051 precincts out of 2,257; Cooper 203,537; Browning 142,781.

For senator—2,012 precincts: Stewart 148,401; Berry 87,276; Representative J. Ridley Mitchell 62,355.

For utilities commissioner—1,881 precincts. Hudson 166,809; Turner 67,213.

Joseph W. Byrns, Jr., son of the late speaker of the national house of representatives, won nomination to the congressional seat his father held for more than a quarter of a century, defeating Representative Richard M. Atkinson, the only one of the state's nine congressmen to be unseated.

Saving and Loan Bodies Put Under Federal Program

Home Loan Bank Board Approves Proposal Offered for Wisconsin

Washington—(P)—The Federal Home Loan Bank board approved today a program to help Wisconsin savings and loan associations provide thrift and home-financing facilities for local communities.

The board said the plan included granting of certificates of insurance on savings and investments to a "substantial" group of associations.

Approval of the program followed a conference between board Chairman John H. Fahey and the Wisconsin State Banking department's advisory committee on building and loans.

The Wisconsin committee consisted of B. F. Kuehlhorn, secretary-treasurer of the Northern Building and Loan association, and John E. Mahoney, secretary-treasurer of the Sterling Savings, Loan and Building association, all of Milwaukee.

$5,000 Maximum
The program would include insurance of share accounts which would insure investors in the institutions up to $5,000 each. The board promised to expedite applications of Wisconsin associations for federal certification.

Membership in the 175 state-chartered associations in Wisconsin totaled 180,728, the board said and the total private capital involved is $150,256,130. The state now has 44 insured associations.

Officials explained a depositor in any insured association might, if the association failed, take an equal amount of stock up to $5,000 in any other association designated by the federal savings and loan corporation. Or he might elect to take 10 per cent of his holdings in cash from the federal corporation, 45 per cent in one year debentures and 45 per cent in three year debentures which may be marketed immediately.

Circus Discharged 1,200 in Violation Of Law, Union Says

Washington—(P)—The American Federation of Actors, filing charges with the labor relations board, accused the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus today of having "illegally, fraudulently and criminally" discharged approximately 1,200 of its union employees.

The circus firm broke a five-year closed shop contract with the federation, the complaint said, in order to effectuate the wholesale discharge.

Counsel for the union said the firing of the workers occurred after they had gone on strike at Scranton, Pa., in June. The show closed there and returned to winter quarters at Sarasota.

Despite an agreement to remain closed, the complaint continued, the circus transferred its equipment to the Al G. Barnes and Sells-Floto circus and is now on the road as a presentation of the latter concern, a subsidiary.

'Family Fights' are Highlights of Ohio Primary Election

Charges are Made of Attempt to 'Buy' G. O. P. Senate Nomination

Columbus, Ohio.—(P)—A series of bitter "family fights" today sparked Ohio campaigning for Tuesday's primary election.

National and state legislative issues were overshadowed by charges of an attempt to "buy" the Republican United States senatorial nomination and that John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization seeks to control the state government.

Robert A. Taft, accused by his opponent, Supreme Court Judge Arthur H. Day, of trying to "buy" the senatorial nomination, was embroiled with the United States senate campaign expenditures committee over the filing of reports on campaign contributions.

Governor Martin L. Davey, whose national guard troops virtually "broke" last summer's CIO strike against "Little Steel" in Ohio, charged the CIO wants to gain control in Ohio through Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, Democratic national committeeman and Davey's opponent for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

New Deal Secondary

The New Deal issue among Democrats was secondary, being confined generally to congressional contests.

United States Robert J. Bulkley and former Governor George White were waging a friendly fight for the Democratic senatorial nomination "on principles." Bulkley was a staunch supporter of the Roosevelt administration's New Deal proposals. White described himself as a "yes-no" Dealer and not a "yes-but" man.

The other Republican ticket leader, John W. Bricker, former Ohio attorney general, was unopposed for the gubernatorial nomination. He was the 1936 nominee, but lost the election to Davey, who is completing his second term.

There was one state-wide Democratic congressional contest on the New Deal issue. Former Congressman Stephen M. Young, seeking one of two representative-at-large seats, directed his campaign against incumbent Harold C. Mosier, charging Mosier voted like a Republican.

6,500 Circus Fans See the Big Show

450-Pound Gorilla, Animal Tamers, Trapeze Artists Thrill Crowd

Circus fans of Appleton and vicinity about 6,500 strong gathered under the big top last night, thrilled at the dancing of animal tapers, peered upward breathlessly as trapeze artists spun through the air, and went home talking about the tough-looking gorilla in the air-conditioned cage.

The show was the Al G. Barnes and Sells-Floto Combined circus, augmented with Ringling Brothers acts, which had a 1-day stand in the city, presenting afternoon and evening performances on the Badger avenue grounds.

The appearance of Gargantua the Great, 450-pound gorilla, was one of the highlights of the evening. With the tent darkened, the beast was paraded past the spectators in his expensive glass and steel cage which looks more like a big refrigerator than a gorilla's apartment.

Many of the more ardent circus fans followed the movements of the big show from the time it arrived in the city early yesterday to its departure early today. Following last night's performance, parties stayed around to watch the dismantling of equipment and the loading of the animals.

Shirley Temple on Her Way Back to Hollywood

Chicago.—(P)—With an armful of dolls and a big smile, Shirley Temple went on a "rubber-neck" trip around Chicago today while waiting for a train that will take her back to Hollywood after a two-month vacation.

"And did I have a grand time?" said the nine-year-old movie star when she arrived this morning.

Mrs. Gertrude Temple, Shirley's mother, said her daughter had recovered from the attack of indigestion that interrupted their trip in the east and caused the parents to decide the vacation with its crowds and parties had been long enough.

Trucking Firm Seeks Approval of 2 Routes

An application of the Wheeler Transportation company, Menasha, to operate over two routes will be considered at one of nine hearings on applications of trucking companies operating between Wisconsin and Minnesota points, by joint boards in late August and early September, according to the Interstate Commerce commission.

The routes named in the Menasha company application are between Menasha and Sheboygan Falls via Hilbert and Plymouth, and between Menasha and St. Boygan between Hilbert and Manitowish. The application will be heard on Aug. 27.

3 Firemen Overcome Blaze at Milwaukee

Milwaukee.—(P)—Three firemen were overcome fighting a three-alarm fire which caused an estimated $40,000 damage Thursday to supplies and machinery in the five-story building occupied by George Sollman and Sons company, advertising specialists.

Two hundred employees, including 25 at work on the fourth floor where the fire broke out following an explosion, reached safety through fire escapes. The firemen felt unconscious on the roof as the result of inhaling nitrogen peroxide fumes from burning celluloid novelties.

Flames were confined to the one floor of the steel and concrete building, but water damage was done on lower floors.

Chapple, Reilly File Their Papers

Eastling of Manawa Also Files at Office of Secretary of State

Madison.—(P)—John B. Chapple, Ashland editor, filed his nomination papers with the secretary of state today as a Republican candidate for the United States senatorial nomination.

Chapple is making the race for the senate for the third time. He defeated the late John J. Blaine in the 1932 primaries, but lost in the election to Senator F. Ryan Duffy, who is a candidate for reelection.

He ran again in 1934 and was the Republican candidate for governor in 1936.

Chapple said his petitions were signed in 56 counties, more than three times the required number.

Lewis W. Eastling, Manawa, filed his nomination papers as a Republican candidate for the state senate, Twenty-third district.

Other candidates whose petitions were on file today include: Congress: Harry Southoff, Madison, Progressive, in the Second district, for re-nomination; Michael K. Reilly, Fond du Lac, Democrat, for re-nomination in the Sixth district; Raymond J. Cannon, Milwaukee, Democrat, for re-nomination in the Fourth district; Melvin Hull, Black River Falls, Progressive, for re-nomination in Ninth district; Edwin H. Wenzel, Fox Point, Republican, Fifth district; Thaddeus F. B. Wasilewski, Democrat, Fourth district; Glenn W. Burkett, Burlington, Republican, First district.

Assembly: Byron L. Kimball, Spooner, Progressive, Burnett and Washburn counties; Herman L. Kronschnabl, Crandon, Progressive, Florence, Forest, Oneida counties; Lewis G. Miller, Westfield, Republican, Adams and Marquette counties.

State senate: Ben Tremain, Hustler, Progressive, Thirty-first district.

Wausau Man Denied Rehearing on Order

Madison.—(P)—The public service commission denied today a petition of W. A. Steffe, Wausau, for rehearing on a July order approving assignment of operating rights of Central Freight Lines to Pope Brothers Red Top Cab company of Wausau.

A petition filed by A. E. Solie stated the commission had erred because the assignor was bankrupt and had no legal authority to sell or assign its certificate.

The commission said: "The record indicates the assignor was approved by the district court and it is the commission's thought that this court has full jurisdiction to take steps for the sale of the assignor company for the benefit of creditors."

The July order combined operations from Green Bay to a general area in Central Wisconsin west of Highway 51, and from Milwaukee to a general area north of Wausau.

Milk Price Inquiry May Require Another Month

Chicago.—(P)—A federal grand jury investigating Chicago milk prices to determine if a milk trust exists on a nationwide scale completed its third week of inquiry today with indications the investigation would require another month.

Leo P. Tierney, special assistant to the attorney general, said accountants and investigators of the department of justice were delving into books and records of various dairy concerns, associations and related organizations.

Witnesses subpoenaed included farmers and independent milk dealers.

Northern Teams Could Try Negro Experiment

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York.—(P)—Jake Powell, a part-time outfielder for the New York Yankees, is riding the pine for ten days for blurring in an impromptu broadcast on the field in Chicago that he spent his winters doing police work and that his specialty was hitting "niggers" over the head with his club.

Judge Landis, who tried the case and imposed the penalty, would thus placate the colored clientele of a business which trades under the name of the national game but has always treated the Negroes as Adolf Hitler treats the Jews.

If all American employers did the same the entire Negro population of this country would starve, become public charges or go back to slavery. So Powell was only giving expression in crude, brief words to the unspoken but inflexible policy of the organized baseball industry. Moreover, his remark was thoughtful and probably untrue, whereas the men who employ him and Judge Landis have given solemn study to the problem and confirmed their decision by their conduct.

Thus no Negro ever has been permitted to play ball or even to try out for a job in the organized industry, and Babe Ruth, were he a colored man, would not have risen above the rank and pay of the leaky-roof leagues in which dark men operate as semi-pros.

In the semi-pro business, however, for more than a quarter of a century white men have played on good teams against teams of Negroes. The white men have included major leaguers come down in the world, unemployed minor leaguers, part-time mediocrities playing for a little extra cash and love of the game and some current major league players out barnstorming after their work was done.

From the days of Rube Foster, a famous colored pitcher, to the present the major league teams, as such, have avoided games with Negro teams, so there is no line of comparison, but certainly Foster and other individuals would have made good in the most expert company but for the great "over-botten." Foster was good, and major league hitters who faced him in informal games admitted that he was ready in all respects but one.

Negro Players would be unwelcome in South. Many of the white players are southern men who would object to Negroes, and the national organization of baseball is such that men must be farmed out to minor leagues playing in southern cities where a Negro would be unwelcome on the field in white company. These are practical difficulties which the magnates have had to consider, and it is no fault of theirs that the prejudice exists.

However, they have been content to respect the prejudice and have never done anything to soften it up, even in northern cities where public opinion would have approved the granting of an opportunity to a pioneer Negro major or minor leaguer. By the time half a dozen Negroes had been given a chance, some to fail on their merits, no doubt, the novelty would wear off, and organized baseball, in certain areas, at least, would be free of discrimination on racial grounds.

From the standpoint of the customers there would be no risk at all north of the line, for they have seen and cheered many new fighters and runners and a few football players in open competition.

Wiley Says People Want Businesslike Regime

Waupaca.—(P)—The people want a businesslike administration in Washington, Alexander Wiley, Republican candidate for United States senator, said last night in an address here.

"The economic health of this nation will come when business sense returns to the seat of government," Wiley said. "Political health will follow with the return of economic health."

Kiwanis Clubs to Hold Convention At Stevens Point

Appleton Group Will Be Among 1,000 Attending 3-Day Parley

A group of Appleton Kiwanians and their wives will be among the 1,000 from clubs throughout the state and Northern Michigan to attend the district convention Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday at Stevens Point.

Highlight of the 3-day meeting will be the banquet Monday night honoring Asa M. Royce of Platteville, district governor. The convention dance following the banquet will be held at the new P. J. Jacobs High school.

Among the speakers scheduled for the sessions will be Dr. Philip Falk, new president of Central State Teachers college, Stevens Point; Attorney General Orland S. Loomis, Madison; H. L. Nunn, president of the Nunn Bush Shoe company, Milwaukee; Edgar G. Doudna, secretary of the board of normal school regents, Madison; John C. Burke, warden of the state penitentiary, Waupun, and Rev. A. M. Keefe, rector of St. Norbert college, De Pere.

The convention will open Sunday night with an outdoor religious service and concert. A sight-seeing tour through the Chain o' Lakes for lady Kiwanians Monday afternoon and the convention golf tournament Tuesday will be entertainment features. Business sessions will open Monday morning.

Amble for Long-Range Industrial Program

Milwaukee.—(P)—Representative Thomas Amble of Elkhorn, Progressive candidate for the United States senate, urged in an address here last night adoption by the federal government of a long range program to enable industry to operate at 90 per cent of capacity instead of its present 50 or 60 per cent.

Amble declared the government should take over unsalable surpluses at cost through contracts with private industry.

Unless the country adopts a long range program, he said, the nation will have indefinitely its 12,000,000 unemployed on its hands.

Duffy's Campaign Manager Says Immell Is Using WPA to Build Up State Progressive Machine

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison.—The WPA as a factor in Wisconsin politics took on a new interest yesterday with the charge by Thomas Millane, campaign manager for Senator F. Ryan Duffy who is seeking reelection as a Democrat, that the state WPA office under Administrator P. D. Flanner is dominated by Adjutant General Ralph M. Immell, executive director of Governor LaFollette's new National Progressives of America.

Millane, chief spokesman for Senator Duffy, No. 1 Wisconsin New Dealer, declared that Progressives are using the WPA to solidify their state political machine, and that WPA foremen and workers in many counties are being "coerced" to join the new Progressive national organization and to contribute toward its campaign chest by purchasing the party's buttons.

In other cases, Democratic progress foremen employed by the WPA have been discharged on pretext, Millane added, to make room for professed members of the Progressive party.

The charges from the Duffy camp brought forth anew speculation on the supposed ouster movement started by Wisconsin Democrats against Flanner, and his replacement by a man of Duffy's choice.

It is generally believed among informed state politicians that the Kaukauna—The Athletics defeated the North C. Y. O. softball team in three extra innings last night by a count of 7 to 6. It was the tenth straight loss for the losers in city league play this year. A double by Jack Burton chased Walsh across with the winning run after one man was out in the tenth.

The C. Y. O. team scored four runs in the second inning to take an early lead. With two out Orrin Romanesko, Schuhman and Vaaevenhoven drew walks to clog the sacks, after which Pat Burns emptied them with a triple, scoring himself on Hatchell's single.

The last two north side runs came across in the next inning. Geigel led off with a one baser and scored on Kuhn's double. Kuhn came home on Van Dyke's single.

Tied in Fifth

Three walks and a single by Jack Burton had given the Athletics one in the first inning, and at the end of the first of the third they trailed 6 to 1. One in the third, two in the fourth and two in the fifth tied the score.

Jack Burton got a 2-base hit with one down in the third, and when Warren Alger's grounder was muffed. In the fourth Floyd Stegeman, Willis Ranquette and Walsh drew walks, with Stegeman and Ranquette counting on Burton's single.

Hits by Clayton Watson and Jerry Meyer combined with two errors and a walk gave the Athletics two in the fifth. Jack Burton's fourth hit of the evening, a double, sent the winning run home in the tenth.

Council to Hold Special Session

Resolution Required for Power Project Up For Approval

Kaukauna — A special meeting of the common council will be held tonight at the municipal building to act on a resolution which must be passed preliminarily to a hearing Monday before the state public service commission at Madison dealing with the proposed building of the power house here on the Patten mill site.

The resolution gives the city the authority, if the new plant and dam are located thereon, to meet payments, to reclaim the property within 30 years. Joseph LeFevre, attorney for the city commission, will present the resolution for approval, with its passage but a formality, inasmuch as the council approved the entire project by vote of 8 to 1 at the regular council meeting Tuesday.

The city already has received a WPA allotment of $140,000 for construction of the dam. An application for a $900,000 PWA grant for building of the power house was approved this week, and it expected to be granted soon. The utility department will contribute $80,000, to match the government's grant as its share of the expense, the money to be borrowed from four banks, two at Kaukauna, one at Little Chute and one at Appleton and to be repaid over a three or four year period. The PWA project for the power house will be let out on private contract.

Community Club Holds District Picnic Sunday

Maple Creek — The Golden Hill Community club held a picnic for the district on Sunday. Both dinner and supper were served in the school and the afternoon was spent socially. Mesdames John Knapp, Elmer Klug and Arnold Handschke were on the picnic committee. All the members of Golden Hill school were present.

Miss Lola Niemuth of Antigo has been given the contract to teach there for the fall term and session to open Sept. 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Witt entertained Sunday in honor of their daughter, Esther. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lemming and family of Milwaukee. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Felner of Dale, Miss Laverne Peters and Jack Remick of New London and Harold Stuegraber.

Finance Committee Head Predicts $28,000 Deficit

Kaukauna—The north side sewer fund and the library fund are the only two city departments which are not spending outside of their limits so far this year, according to the financial report on the city condition as of Aug. 1, drawn up by Oscar Alger, chairman of the finance committee. A deficit of between $28,000 and $30,000 is estimated by Alger for the year.

"Because of insufficient time to prepare the report they (the estimates) are not absolutely accurate," Alger said, "but are reasonable estimates that may under-run or over-run a little." Cash on hand is $28,780.23, and expenses estimated for the year are $110,880.15, over-receivable including cash on hand is $82,099.16.

The fund for poor relief is in the most precarious position. An allotment of $2,000 for this purpose was originally made, and on Aug. 1, with five months remaining, only $2,076 is left. To run the new sewer disposal plant a budget of $5,000 was set. Already $5,026.94 has been expended for a deficit of $26.96.

Other funds

The standard of other funds is as follows: north road district, allotted, $8,000, balance, $2,775; south road district, allotted, $8,000, balance, $2,695; north sewer district, allotted, $800, balance, $116; south sewer district, allotted $300, balance, $157.36; operation of parks and playgrounds, allotted, $600, 6.

balance, $2,146; WPA materials and supplies, allotted, $5,000, balance, $943.34.

The contingent fund shows a deficit of $7,043.94.

Total monthly expenditures are estimated at $20,000 each month. For the last five months, $109,000 will thus be needed, which plus $11,000 payment on the fire truck, $3,000 on bonds and interest, and $1,000 sewage plant construction, gives the $110,000 to complete the year.

It will be noted that the amount of money needed to operate the city exceeds the estimated revenues by quite a substantial figure," Alger explained. Kaukauna has been ready to within a few hundred dollars of the amount allowed by state law. Its valuation increased some $100,000 this year, so the city's borrowing power was increased about $3,000, as the city may borrow to five per cent of its assessed valuation.

Economics Will be Studied From All Angles in Inquiry

Hearings Will be Only One Phase of Comprehensive Investigation

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Although there has not been a meeting yet of the members of the National Economic Committee, which is to investigate monopolies, it is becoming more and more evident every day that the inquiry is to be one of the most comprehensive ever conducted in Washington.

The plan is to study the operations of the economic system from every pertinent angle, so as to determine what legislation, if any, can be adopted to help remove the serious maladjustments which from time to time occur.

Hearings are to be only one phase of the inquiry. The plan is for committee investigators to gather data which will be studied by committee experts, who then may present monographs dealing with interpretations of the data collected. On the basis of these studies, there might naturally be hearings at which business men would be interrogated and presumably, if the studies drew conclusions with which business men disagreed, they would have an opportunity to state their side of the case.

The hearings doubtless will run on with subcommittees taking up particular phases. There may be as many as six different groups taking testimony, but it is believed these subcommittees will meet consecutively, rather than simultaneously, so that committee members will have an opportunity to become familiar with all phases of the inquiry.

Phases for Study

Some of the studies are expected to cover these phases:

1. A comprehensive inquiry into the concentration of economic or financial power by large banks, insurance companies, and investment trusts. The securities and exchange commission personnel is relied on mostly to gather this data and interpret it.

2. An analysis of the operations of the anti-trust laws and the economic results which arise under modern economic practices, but which are not reachable under existing statutes. The department of justice personnel is expected to take charge of this phase.

3. A study of the relationship of government spending to business, and particularly the revelation of business practices which government buying discloses. The theory is to see what power can be exerted through government's buying or spending power to effect reforms in economic practices. The treasury department and Herman Oliphant, assistant secretary of the treasury, are to have charge of his division of the work.

4. A study of the alleged abuse of the patent privilege by industry, including the pooling of patents and practices with reference to the buying up of patents by competitors, with the idea of making changes in the patent laws.

5. A study of trade associations and of the integration of enterprises through such associations. This study will probably be directed by Willard Thorp, formerly director of the division of foreign and domestic commerce in the department of commerce, with the cooperation of Richard Patterson, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce.

Labor Unions

6. Monopolistic practices on the part of labor unions. This aspect has been urged, but the way the subject is to be handled is still only vaguely discussed hereabouts, as it is a ticklish matter for the committee to touch.

One thing seems certain, and that is the effort to avoid duplicating previous committees is to be made. Thus, various reports already issued by the Federal Trade Commission, for example, and by university professors who have specialized in the study of certain fields of monopolistic practice will be re-examined with a view to interrogating witnesses about them. The object would be, in a nutshell, to carry forward from existing findings. The committee will probably not issue one report, but interim reports from time to time covering special phases, very much as did the Pupo committee and the famous National Monetary commission of a quarter of a century ago.

All the plans are necessarily tentative, because, at the moment, the congressional members of the committee are absent and the personnel from the executive departments and agencies naturally do not wish to seem to be making decision till the senators and representatives get back here next September. On the other hand, when the latter get back, they will find that the executive agency members and their staffs have been busy making up tentative outlines of what information may be sought in order to enlighten the country on how the American economic system operates.

Doctors Hoping to Save Right Eye of Colan Baby

Chicago — (U) — Physicians attending Baby Helaine Colan have reported progress in their efforts to save the life of the infant who three months ago, in the opinion of medical specialists, faced blindness and early death.

After removal of her left eye, last May to halt the spread of glioma, a rare tumor malady, the four-month-old daughter of a young dentist and his wife received 50 X-ray treatments.

Dr. Morris Hershman, the baby's maternal grandfather, said attending physicians have reported her condition "greatly improved," and have "great hopes of saving the sight of the right eye."

When the parents of Helaine were unable to determine whether to have the child undergo an operation, 10 specialists and 2 rabbis voted for surgery.

Requests for PWA Money Filed at Washington, D. C.

Mayor Advised He Will be Notified When Projects are Approved

A letter informing him that Appleton's applications for PWA money are being considered in the central offices at Washington, D. C., was received by Mayor John Goodland, Jr., today.

The letter advised the mayor he will be notified as soon as the applications are approved or if any serious difficulties arise.

Appleton has filed two applications for two projects, one totaling $450,470 covering paving of six streets and part of another with 32-foot pavements, one street and part of another with 37-foot pavements, and another with a 28-foot pavement.

The other project involves an expenditure of about $90,000 to remodel Lincoln school so that the building may be used as a city hall. The city's share of the work will total about $50,000 on the remodeling job and about $83,000 on the paving program. Property owners directly will be assessed the remainder of the cost above the PWA grant which will total about $218,000.

Applications for both projects were filed early last month when city officials went to Chicago to personally apply at the PWA regional offices. Money for both projects has been earmarked and will be borrowed from Appleton banks if and when PWA approves the applications.

Pedestrian Hurt in Accident With Auto

Miss Bertha Potezel, 63, 714 W. Eighth street, suffered severe arm and leg injuries in an accident involving a car driven by Walter Ochiltree, 57, 1339 W. College avenue, about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Ochiltree was driving west on Washington street and Miss Potezel was crossing the street at the Onside intersection when the accident occurred, according to a police report. The injured woman was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital.

Lappen at Meeting of Police Traffic Group

Sheriff John Lappen today is attending a meeting of a committee of the Wisconsin Police, Radio and Traffic association at Neenah which is making plans for a meeting in the near future. The association is seeking to unify the county traffic patrol of the state and promote safety on the highways. Lappen is chairman of the committee on arrangements on the coming meeting.

Install Fence Around School Tennis Courts

Installation of the fence around the tennis courts at the new senior high school was started Wednesday by WPA workmen under the direction of A. James Lytle, Jr., superintendent. Posts to carry the fence have been erected. It is expected the tennis courts will be ready for use when school opens this fall. The board of appeals Tuesday granted the school board permission to erect the fence.

Corrigan virtually was lifted by the police and placed in the automobile for the ride down the west side express highway to the Battery and the start of the parade.

Such crowds, such boisterous enthusiasm had been unseen in New York for years, perhaps not since the frenzied tribute to Colonel Lindbergh.

And on lower Broadway it was the same tremendous thing, a multitude of shouters, screaming men and women, bent on expending the energy stored up through all of yesterday's wait while the Manhattan, bearing their hero back from Europe, moved slowly through a fog to a late arrival.

Fully a hundred thousand persons gathered at the Battery.

They let out one mighty roar after another as the parade, headed by mounted police and flanked by officers on motorcycles, moved slowly past and started the ride up Broadway.

The roars went up blocks in advance of the little flier and continued long after he had passed.

Through all of his triumphant passage along the street where New York parades heroes, he grinned. The ticker tape fell steadily, festooning the fronts of the skyscrapers, wrapping itself around flagpoles, flags and banners entangling Corrigan himself.

LaGuardia Speaks

The ovation to Corrigan at city hall lasted a full two minutes. Corrigan bowed the crowd grinning. Mayor LaGuardia gave him the freedom of the city and spoke pleasantly and lightly of the "prepared impulsiveness of your grand flight."

The mayor spoke of another Irishman, Eamonn de Valera, prime minister of Eire, remarking that he, like Corrigan, set his compass in a certain direction and got where he wanted to go—from Brooklyn to a high place in the Emerald Isle.

Corrigan grinned, and when the mayor finally had finished and the crowd was roaring again, shouting "Corrigan Corrigan!" the flier walked to the speaker's stand and stood there, hands clasped, then working nervously while the spectators' cries continued.

He could say little, he remarked. For the mayor's speech had well nigh "floored him." But he could say to the mayor, "that you, too, have your compass set in a certain direction and you'll get there if you want to."

Apparently the crowd knew, for it exploded with laughter. The mayor looked surprised, then he too, grinned.

Trees Fall, Waves Trespass Shore as Brief Storm Hits

Rain, Wind Sweep City and Vicinity for Short Time This Morning

Gusts of rain and a strong wind swept the city and vicinity this morning. The storm subsided as quickly as it came and this afternoon was cloudy but placid.

The wind felled trees, knocked wires down, and chased Lake Winnebago beyond its normal boundaries in the cottage section along the north shore. Several trees were blown down in Bellaire Court, one falling across Tonka street, residents reported.

Damage to power lines was not severe, the Wisconsin Michigan Power company reported, but service wires in Appleton and a primary wire in Kimberly were blown down. There was slight damage to wires throughout the entire vicinity.

Thundershowers tonight and perhaps tomorrow, with cloudy and cooler weather, is the outlook for Appleton and vicinity contained in today's forecast from the Milwaukee weather bureau. At 1:30 this afternoon, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 79 degrees. For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 89 and the lowest 64.

Kansas City, with 100, and Yellowstone, with 48, were the hottest and coldest cities respectively in the nation yesterday.

YOUTHS FIND WAY TO BECOME "REAL" FARM WORKERS

Whatever the task, Richard and Clarence, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wittman, route 2, Appleton, are ready to "pitch in" with the aid of their calf team. Richard, left, and Clarence, right, in the above picture, broke the calves to harness. They put large wheels on an old wagon and added a large rack. The harnesses were cut down and made over from old team trappings.

Boys Break Young Calves To Harness for Farm Work

When Richard, 10, and Clarence, 15, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wittman, route 2, Appleton, are busy with "regular" farm work they are teaching their young calves new tricks.

The two youths have "broken" the two young calves to the harness and help their elders haul hay, grain, silage and gravel on the farm. The boys first got their idea of breaking the calves to harness while doing chores. They were told to take a young calf from the basement of the barn and had considerable trouble getting the animal to walk up the steep incline.

Undaunted, they kept at the task until they not only had the calf walking up the incline but also steps. They next began training another calf and now both a Guernsey and Holstein, are used as a team. The youths took a small wagon, put on larger wheels and a rack to carry large loads. They cut down some old harness and trappings to rig out the team.

The boys feel rather important helping to haul in hay for the barn and gravel for the farm driveway. They work along with the regular farm hands each day and haul in just as many loads, if smaller, as the horse teams do.

County Rural Schools Will Open on Sept. 5-6

Rural and state graded schools in Outagamie county will open for the fall term on Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 5 and 6, according to Henry J. Van Straten, county superintendent. The school calendar is being prepared and will be announced within a short time.

Ammon Says Law Compels Him to Collect Oleo Tax

Work Will Continue in Valley Despite Pleas For Leniency

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Ralph E. Ammon, acting director of the state department of agriculture and markets, today reiterated that he has no choice under the law in the collection of delinquent taxes on oleomargarine or similar butter substitutes.

Ammon said that efforts to collect back taxes on the oleo product in the Fox river valley urban centers, begun several weeks ago, will be continued despite the pleas for leniency from grocers in that section.

Ammon also released a letter which he has written to Arthur E. Geseb, secretary of the Wisconsin Retail Grocers association, which inquired about the department's policy in the collection of the taxes under the Cashman anti-margarine law.

"We appreciate the splendid attitude of the grocery men," the department director wrote, but the members of the board of agriculture "regret that under the provisions of the statutes it is not within their power to be lenient in the collection of the tax on oleomargarine."

Told of reported plans to institute further court tests of the validity of the oleo tax law, passed in 1935 at the instance of Senator John Cashman of Denmark, Ammon said "that is the business of the retailers."

The department, he said, has sufficient basis for its collection activities in the court verdict recently won in Outagamie county circuit court.

R. M. Orchard, department counsel, is in charge of the tax collections, and is making periodic visits to the valley area and others in the state, the department reports.

THE NEIGHBORLY POLICY ALONG THE HUDSON

One never expects neighbors on the Hudson to disagree, much less quarrel.

And Mr. Spencer, who owned an estate across the river from the Roosevelt family seat and who once lived at Appleton, should not take so much to heart the distinctions that have grown up in the last few years, choicely referred to as an age of liberalism.

The dispute arose over the old Dutch name, Krumb Elbow, to which Mr. Spencer claimed his property was entitled. He had maps ever so far back to prove his point. They also showed the correct name for the Roosevelt property as Crook's Delight.

But suddenly one of those Washington bureaus placidly called the Geodetic Survey took over the matter and has designated the Roosevelt property as Krumb Elbow and the estate that had so long borne that name as Spencer Point.

Apparently Mr. Spencer went through several emotional stages in relation to his property and his distinguished neighbors. His first real error was in concluding that he lived in a democracy and that all men were even and equal, even the Spencers and the Roosevelts. Perhaps the Geodetic Survey jarred him a bit on this point but he should have read how a Tulsa, Oklahoma, man tried to get a radio license after the New Deal senator decided he wasn't "right with me" and compare it to the alacrity with which the same radio over-lords shot out a license to the President's daughter-in-law in Texas a field already crowded.

The bewildered Mr. Spencer then seems to have run upon the President's definition of a good neighbor when he recited the details of his beautiful policy:

"The good neighbor is the neighbor who resolutely respects himself and because he does so respects the rights of others, the neighbor who respects his obligations and respects the sanctity of his agreements and with a world of neighbors."

And so Mr. Spencer mused, O, wondrous judge, here is peace and security.

Of course we do not know what other evidence paraded itself before Mr. Spencer living there so close to the simple and frugal Roosevelts who have cornered more millions since the head of the family became President than Big Steel has made in the same period.

We sort of suspect that Mr. Spencer became mischievous. At any rate he got in touch with Father Divine who heads thousands of angels and is asserted by them to be God. Perhaps Mr. Spencer perceived an analogy with the Farley machine. But he says his studies of the Neighborly Policy and the aristocrat become Messiah are altogether in favor of the man with the black skin, and this is his deduction:

"I can't get labor to farm my land. The men are all on relief. They won't work. I have a standing offer for men at 45 cents an hour, and I can't get them."

"On the other hand Father Divine will not accept as a follower a man who is on relief until he pays the government back. He is against debt and pays cash. His followers work and enjoy the fruits of their labor. If these people will work the land, then I think they are entitled to it. His places which I looked over are kept in remarkable order. His people are earnest, hard-working men and women."

No doubt the versatile Mr. Farley will deal with this problem. But it will be harder than just leading trucks full of paid shouters for a democratic convention.

With Father Divine and his angels on one side of the river and the master of the Neighborly Policy across will we not in time baptize the New Deal Field Marshals? Let Barkley be called Peace and Harmony. Faith Hope and Charity, and particularly the latter, crown Hopkins well. Love Blessing would do well for a modifier on Mr. Farley. And then the Divine angels and the Democratic angels could just glow in their faith, peace, respect and love while they charmed the Neighborly Policy, but never mentioned Mexico.

FRANCE IS SAVED AGAIN

Even England and France, grey with age and experience, find a meeting of their rulers abounding in perplexities.

When the English King recently came to Paris it was planned to have him ride in the same car with the French President to the acclaim of the gathered thousands.

But who should enter the car first?—answer that one if you can. Sternly and wretchedly did the French Ministry ponder this crucial question. It brought more sweat to furrowed brows than the recent Czech flare-up. But a bright Gaul found the answer. He so arranged it they both entered the car from opposite sides at the same time. That saved the day.

But another grave question intruded from a source never anticipated. When the wife of the President was presented publicly to the Queen she curtsied deeply, as the French papers mildly described it. From the pictures she seemed to kneel at the Queen's feet.

This was bound to start a gesticulating argument all over Republican France. England really is its life-line as in 1914 it was its saviour, and England may have kings and queens and lords and ladies all she likes for France is broad-minded, but kneeling is another question.

The country was aroused. It seethed from the Belgian Border to the Spanish Pyrennes. But then, like lightning, the clouds lifted and the sun smiled, and Frenchmen smiled with it. For someone reminded them that the President's wife had never been chosen by the people to represent France and was no more important in the controversy than one of the crowd.

So France went to sleep gaily satisfied that all was well with the world since the stubborn independence of its democracy has been maintained as ever.

THE WORD IS VERBOTEN

Newton, Iowa, claims 15,000 people. But are they Americans?

Observe a day in their recent history. The over-lord of the town is in uniform. He carries but the title of Major for Newton isn't very big and the Governor, Iowa's supreme War-Lord, cannot give it much time.

The Major, like 14th century knights, is examining the petitions of his humble people. He has already prohibited all meetings of whatsoever kind or description. Three people talking together become suspicious characters.

The Y.M.C.A. begs the noble lord for permission to stage a softball game between two of its teams. The Major strums on his desk. The most innocent disguises are usually used to conceal insurrections. After due consideration he determines to issue a permit under certain conditions and restrictions. The game may be held under military supervision. A detail of helmeted soldiers carrying rifles is named to prevent the game from turning into a set of speeches. Free speech has already been abolished.

It is found the Odd Fellows want to hold a meeting. Is this their regular meeting? How big is the hall? How many will attend? A permit is issued for a room that will hold 30 people. That number could not start much of an outbreak.

In the same careful and cautious manner the Townsend Club is permitted to hold its meeting "in the ladies' lounge at the court-house." They cannot pack many in the lounge.

The city council is given a permit but the National Labor Relations Board is held up. Probably the Major reasons that a council meeting is necessary and the most unnecessary thing for Newton would be a Labor Board created by the Wagner Law. Anyway the Major does not like the Board. Most of its examiners are strutting peacocks who have been kicking the people of this country around long enough. The Major's boots are new and he'd like to plunk one of them into the flabby flank of the worst organization that was ever given authority in America.

Just then an orderly enters. A hopeless citizen was found drunk on the street. The Major directs his trial by court martial for the courts have been suspended in Newton. Nothing is more hateful to autocrats than courts.

Unhappily it must be recorded that the foregoing is a true picture of the crash and downfall of decent and orderly government that, to date, has been engineered through laws designed by the lily-handed aristocrats that have climbed to power by way of various pretenses and promises found to have been given with great inaccuracy.

It is not yet a picture of despair. But it is dangerous.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

SORROW'S DARK CAVE

In the cave, stumbling along in the darkness,
Far ahead of us we can see
A point of light, a promise of daytime splendor,
A pledge of infancy.

In our sorrow, creeping through darkness blindly,
Losing our footing the night,
Left, and we see in the lonely distance,
The thickest clouds of light.

LEHMAN'S REPLY

Ray G. Hayden devote a Washington dispatch to The News to the results of a check made by the aids of Gov. Lehman of President Roosevelt's reference to New York finances in his Kentucky speech. The president said he would not have left a $100,000,000 deficit when he relinquished the New York governorship if he had had the Federal assistance for relief purposes which Lehman has received.

While it comes from Lehman's friends, the check appears to leave the Roosevelt statement much out of line with the facts. An outline of the principal features of Lehman's side follows:

That while Roosevelt was governor state expenses exceeded receipts by $193,000,000, of which sum $23,000,000 represented unemployment relief.

That spending for relief did not begin in New York until 1931, continuing during only two years of Roosevelt's service as governor;

Dale Harrison's In Old New York

Atlantic City, N. J.—Thoughts of a man in a rolling chair on the Board Walk:

It is hotter here than in New York. Things cost more, too. Hotel rates are higher. I have never seen as much mass perspiration on men's faces as there was in the hotel dining room to-night—and this is supposed to be a place where people can come and Get Away From the Heat. I could find only one public dining place that was air-conditioned. If they install air conditioning it is a reflection on the cooling qualities of the resort. If they don't, the people get hot.

Saturdays are the busiest days for the rolling chair pushers. Sundays will bring a larger crowd but not so many of the rolling chair type. The rest of the week is not very busy.

A rolling chair jehu averages 13 miles a day—on good days. He gets a wage plus tips. The season runs through the summer. July and August are the big months.

The resort is open the year round, but the winters are pretty sad. Most of the Board Walk shops are boarded. No customers. The hotels do some business, but nothing sensational.

There is a spot along the beach that gives off the stench of clams. My jehu, a very black and very leisurely fellow, remarks: "I don't see how those white folks can stand it, going in bathing with all that smell." I said I didn't see how they could either.

My jehu said: "I've been living in Atlantic City for fourteen years, and I've been in bathing just three times." That's strange. Either he's right or millions of people who travel long distances to reach Atlantic City and go bathing are wrong. I wouldn't be surprised but what maybe he's right.

My jehu said: "Most winters I go to Philadelphia or New York. I can't make no money pushing a chair here in the winter. One winter I tried it. From January 1 to May 14 I earned six dollars."

I said: "You can't live on that—six dollars in four months." He said: "Yes, but. Sometimes when it was cold the company sent us coffee."

I said: "You can't pay rent with coffee." The jehu replied: "You sure can't. That old man landlord is sure enough a mean man."

The jehus all look tired. The resorters look mostly fat. Especially the women. There are a lot of fat women in bathing suits. They are rather ridiculous to look upon, but they don't know it. They think they are attractive.

The men are ridiculous, too. There is a man lying in the hot sand, hour after hour, the sun beating down on him, burning him, drying his skin. He will go back to the city displaying his tan as vainly as a peacock with a spread of feathers. Tan is smart. Tan is healthy. He's heard it somewhere. He thinks he can get his quota of tan intensively over a weekend. So do I, but I'm a little goofy, too.

There are more women than men on the boardwalk. Men send their women to resorts because the women say they are "worn out and need a change and a rest." The men are worn out, too, and need a rest, but someone has to work if someone else has to play.

Why do so many bathers insist upon going beyond the limits marked for them in the water? There goes another one under—the whistle of the life guard—laughing men—the launching of the lifeboat—it's a girl in a red bathing cap—she got smart, and maybe she'll drown—if she doesn't, it's because the life guards get there in time—they're having trouble with the boat, for the waves are high—they reach her, pull her in, bring her ashore—she's all right—she runs away through the crowd—the little fool.

Riding in a rolling chair on the Board Walk, a fellow shouldn't think. He should relax. He should smile at people at play and say to himself: "Isn't this just grand?"

I'm afraid the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce isn't going to like this. Maybe some day I'll learn to keep my mouth shut.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Friday, Aug. 3, 1928

Although he was four under par for the 72 holes with a total of 284, Frank Walsh, professional at Butte des Morts golf club and Wisconsin state champion, was noted out of the Chicago District open championship the previous day at Idlewild club, Flossmore, Ill., by Abe Espinosa of the last green by a 1-stroke margin.

Clarence A. Loesch and Henry W. Schmalz, president and secretary, respectively, of the Menasha Rotary club, were acting as delegates at the conference of Rotary club officials at Ashland.

R. Langenberg, Appleton, was reelected secretary-treasurer of the Wisconsin Shoemakers association at the convention in Milwaukee.

25 YEARS AGO

Friday, Aug. 8, 1913

The alley south of College avenue between Oneida and Morrison streets had been closed by a gate at the Morrison street entrance. The east end of the alley was owned by the Albion Land company and Comerford and Clark.

The cornerstone of the new First National bank building was laid that morning, nothing was enclosed nor were there any special ceremonies. John Fello, who laid the cornerstone of the present building 43 years previous, assisted the work that morning. He was a retired mason.

The local offices of the American and Wells-Fargo Express companies had not yet received official orders relative to the cut in rates ordered by the Interstate Commerce commission.

Gustave Keller the previous day was unanimously reelected high treasurer of the Catholic Order of Foresters at the national convention held at Louisville, Ky., for his third 2-year term.

That, in the four years from 1933 to 1936, the Lehman administration spent from state funds $34,877,000 for relief, providing the money by bond issues and increased taxation.

That, since 1936, state relief spending has continued, though on a pay-as-you-go basis.

And that, while providing for relief on a scale far larger than was required under Roosevelt, Lehman's administration paid off the Roosevelt deficit and was able to report a credit balance in the state treasury on July 1 of this year.

The most seriously unfortunate effect of what seems to have been a curious—or, possibly a careless—Roosevelt error, involves disparagement of the balance in the finances of the country's largest state which Lehman was able to report on July 1. The contrast with the balance of New York and Federal finances, throughout the years of Roosevelt's services as governor and president, were, so to speak, pool-poisoned.

Gov. Lehman, a Democrat, has demonstrated that irrespective of Federal aid state income can be made to meet out after generously providing for the relief essentials, — old age pensions, unemployment insurance, direct relief for unemployables, etc.

The inferences drawn at the end of Mr. Hayden's dispatch are logical. They are (1) that application of the Lehman policies at Washington could by this time have balanced the Federal budget and (2) that Lehman's example in New York sharply calls on Roosevelt (or his successors) similarly to perform at Washington the difficult and unpleasant task of wiping out the Federal deficit.—Detroit News.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Until this day I had never been inside a submarine and a one-hour visit compelled a complete rewriting of all previous impressions about what goes on in the war beneath the seas.

Stories have been written about the dozens of dials and gauges of a big air-bomber has to watch. But in comparison with the submarine, the dashboard of a modern bomber looks as simple as the backside of an alarm clock. For every dial on a plane there are 10 in a submarine. Every two paces a person must side-step an outcropping motor or a jutting dial board.

The Seals (submarines are named for sea creatures), a spanking new 1,300-ton submarine, put in at Washington after sailing up the Potomac and a few newsmen were permitted to go into her belly. A submarine looks like nothing so much as a 30-foot section of a huge metropolitan water main pinched together neatly at the ends.

On the top-side is a platform deck, above which sticks a tapered-off deck cabin and a single gun. Several hatchways, each the size of a manhole, let a person down in. You do better in a submarine, if you are middle height and thin, of which this correspondent is one, but the other, inside, it is the beautifully polished intricacy of a fine watch.

Have A Cigar

The $4,000,000 Seal has some of the Navy's latest devices for making a submarine the terror of the seas. In a spot or two as our party squirmed through the boat we were told not to look too closely or ask questions but at the end of the journey I emerged with only one or two ideas that conceivably might be considered naval secrets.

This lady had four torpedo tubes forward and four aft, and ton-weight torpedoes were tucked about here and there like cigars in the pockets of an electioneering congressman. It can spit out torpedoes from the surface or when down a hundred feet or more. Under their own power, torpedoes automatically seek the level at which they are set to race through the water, several miles if necessary, to open up an enemy cruiser.

Hitting the right spot, one torpedo can lay open a hole in the flank of a battleship as big as a tunnel. On the walls, the floor and even the ceiling are valves, dials, switch buttons, speaking tubes, signal lights, stoves and a host of other gauges, speedometers and devices to measure constantly the distance to the surface and to the bottom.

Mr. Grover's Observation

In battle, a submarine travels "blind" much of the time. It sticks its periscope above the surface for an occasional fleeting glance at its target and then jerks it back out of sight. In those instants of vision the officer must learn the distance, speed and course of the enemy ship, so he can send a torpedo to meet it.

On the surface the boat travels with Diesel engines which also charge tremendous storage batteries. These batteries furnish power for underwater travel when the Diesels can't be used.

Before the boat dives, every hull opening must be closed and the Diesels shut off. If left running with all air sources cut off, the Diesel, gasping for breath with their 4,000 horsepower lungs, would create an instant vacuum within the submarine.

"It might kill the crew instantly," said an officer. With all normal air pressure gone the men probably would explode like popcorn.

You should see the Seal's kitchen. In space the size of a double telephone booth the cook prepares meals for 50 men and five officers. He can lock his pots and pans in place on the electric stove. Like other cooks, he looked pained at having visitors.

The whole submarine is a beautiful mechanism as deadly as a witch's blessing. I, personally, would not feel bad if it spent its whole working life lolling about in the Potomac, needing never to take a crack at an enemy vessel.

COOPERATIVE HEALTH SOCIETIES

Editor Post-Crescent—In a news article which appeared in the Post-Crescent Tuesday under the headline "Oppose Selection of Medicine by Lay People," Dr. A. H. Reector, president-elect of the State medical society is quoted as having made some remarks about "socialized medicine" about which I would like to elaborate.

The term "socialized medicine" is somewhat misleading because it may mean co-operative health associations to some people or governmental controlled health agencies to others. People who have not made a study of both types are apt to confuse them though they differ from each other as night as to day.

To make the statement in the news item that "socialized medicine has failed to do this in any form suggested today" attributed to Dr. Reector is certainly not true if co-operative health associations were in mind. To mention only one successful co-operative health association I would call attention to the Co-operative Health Society at Elk City, Oklahoma. This is a vol-

Your Birthday

"LEO"

If August 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m.; from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m., and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m.; from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m., and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

It might pay you to show a willingness to be helpful this day. The spirit of cooperation will bring good results. The average persons is likely to be in an exceptionally good humor with a desire to play jokes. Avoid hurrying, particularly in work requiring the use of your hands. Haste will be the primary cause of most of this day's accidents many of the serious and costly mishaps being caused by dropping valuable articles. This is a day when it should be natural for some people to gravitate towards congenial companions. Let nothing cause you to go over real or fancied wrongs, for you cannot afford to be doctored. Married and engaged couples, as well as those in love, must not be too matter-of-fact this day, because indifference is likely to be resented.

If a woman and August 6 is your birthday, you probably have a forgiving nature, and a sincere desire to be friendly with everyone you are closely associated with. Either professionally, commercially or socially, you are apt to reach a position that will cause you to be regarded as a leader. You may love to mother people. You should have a forceful personality, and the knack of getting your friends to do what you want them to. As a research worker, artist, singer, teacher, author, actress or broker your opportunities to make money and a name are seemingly unlimited. Your home life, especially as a married woman, is likely to be the realization of your childhood dreams.

Personal Health Talks

ICE IS COLD BUT IS IT PURE?

A reader, noting a reply in this column which implied that ice made in the household refrigerator is as pure as ice made elsewhere, advises me to mix some drinks with both kinds of ice and agree to pay for the drinks if I fail to detect an appreciable difference in favor of the ice made in a factory.

Oh, well, if that's the way the test must be made I'd rather leave it as it is. My drink would be only water anyway, and I hate to think of any one paying for water.

The reader asks an impertinent rhetorical question. Have you ever taken a bacterial count on ice made in a household refrigerator, and compared it with the bacterial count on ice made in a factory?

In reply I blush to say I haven't. But if I were to try it the results might be startling.

No. I am content to go along as I do now. The tap water we use in our home is as pure as any one can desire, for drinking. Frozen in the refrigerator it is still pure.

The mixed drink business makes me pretty tired in any circumstance. If a person can't use water or some wholesome food or beverage to test ice with, then I'd rather hear no more about it.

Of course if the water is polluted or impure, ice made from it may be impure. Typhoid bacilli, for example, may survive freezing. But it doesn't matter whether the ice is made by nature out in the lake, by the man in the factory or by your own household refrigerator. If the water is fit to drink the ice made from it is as safe in every way. If the water is of questionable purity it should be boiled to sterilize it before it is frozen.

Water for drinking is better cooled by keeping it in a suitable container in the refrigerator. Any refrigerator which keeps food from spoiling will cool water satisfactorily in this way.

Rosenau (Preventive Medicine and Hygiene, Appleton, 1933) says, that natural ice is purer than the water from which it is taken, but he found that manufactured ice may contain more bacteria than the water from which it was made, due to unclean methods.

In a few epidemics of typhoid fever the infection has been ascribed to the use of polluted ice, but it is now recognized that ice purifies itself in the process of freezing, and the evidence that ice can actually contain germs capable of causing disease is not convincing.

A single glassful of ice water is perfectly healthy to drink when one is thirsty, but larger quantities, especially when one is tired, may not be so good. Pleasantly cooled water is always better than ice cold water or other beverage to relieve thirst and refresh.

17,194 New State Laws Were Adopted in 1937

Chicago —Legislatures were reported by the Council of State Governments to have added 17,194 new laws to the statute books in 1937.

North Carolina, where the governor has no veto power, headed the list with 1,163 laws enacted. Tennessee added 1,141; Connecticut, 1,054; California 933 and New York 927.

These were weeded from more than 54,500 bills introduced in both houses of 43 states. New York legislators introduced the greatest number, 4,678; California 4,092; Minnesota 3,307 and Tennessee 3,068.

Governor Merriam of California vetoed the greatest number of bills, 423, nearly twice as many as Governor Lehman of New York vetoed. Governor Stanford of Arizona approved all the 79 bills passed by his legislature.

The council estimated that state legislatures cost each family in the United States 35 cents a year.

TABLE STARTS GROWING

Pahokee, Fla. —G. R. Miller doesn't know whether to use a piece of furniture he has in his living room as a table or as an ornamental shrub.

Mueller Cows are Top Producers of Fat During July

Show 40.6-Pound Average In Black Creek-Cicero Improvement Group

Emil Mueller's herd of registered Brown Swiss produced an average of 1,093 pounds of milk or 40.6 pounds of butterfat for the best July record in the Black Creek-Cicero Herd Improvement association. A cow in the William Barth, Jersey herd was high in individual production with 1,119 pounds of milk containing 64.9 pounds of butterfat.

The Elmer Gosse Guernsey herd was second in production with an average of 38 pounds of fat. Third was the William Barth Guernsey and Jersey herd with a 37.4-pound average. The Guernsey herd of Oscar Kneisler was fourth with an average of 37 pounds and the Herman Wussow, Jersey herd fifth with an average of 34 pounds.

Second and third in individual production were cows in the Emil Mueller herd, showing 64.1 and 60.1 pounds of butterfat, respectively. A cow in the Charles Wussow herd was fourth with 60 pounds of fat, while fifth was a cow in the William Barth herd with 57.2 pounds of fat.

Eighty-eight cows in the association produced 40 or more pounds of butterfat for the month. Following are owners and the number: Adolph Miller 4, William Schmidt 2, Robert Gosse 1, John Helein 1, William Sigt 1, Herman Miller and Son 5, Theodore Miller 1, Robert Mueller 5, Henry Haug 1, Guy Daniels 8, Emil Mueller 10, William Jenkins 4, Charles Henning 1, Oscar Kneisler 4, Herman Wussow 2, William Barth 9, Charles Wussow 6, Elmer Gosse 5, William Kasten 1, Fred Weisenberger 2, John Fuhrman 1, Elmer Mory 3, John Huse 1, George Stingle 4 and Nick Rettler 3.

Chopped Alfalfa Hay Has Both Bad And Good Points

Tests Reveal It Is as Palatable as the Long Feed

Some farmers chop alfalfa before storing it in the mow. Others stack it or store it "as is." Recent investigations by the bureau of dairy industry show both methods have advantages, according to a bulletin received by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent, from the federal department of agriculture. Long hay did not heat as much in the mow as the chopped hay. It reached a maximum temperature of 81 degrees Fahrenheit and declined to 72 degrees within two days. The chopped hay, however, reached a maximum of 106 degrees within two days and declined to 76 degrees in 16 days. After 150 days of storage, the carotene content of the long hay was about 50 per cent greater than that of the chopped hay. The long hay retained its green color somewhat better, with 54 to 57 per cent as much green color as the greenest alfalfa hay. The chopped hay had only 47 to 48 per cent as much as the greenest alfalfa hay.

But there are advantages for chopped hay, say the bureau specialists. More can be stored in a given space. Less work is required in the mow at time of storage. It is more easily removed. In the case of stemmy hays, consumption is more complete because the leaves are not so readily selected from chopped hay as from long hay.

Only dry, well-cured hay should be chopped, results of two years' experiments show. The hay should not be chopped finer than three-fourths of an inch. Both high moisture content and fine chopping increase temperature in the mow and bring about destruction of the color and carotene. Under certain conditions the temperature may become high enough to make a fire hazard.

Feeding tests show the chopped hay is as palatable as the long hay. Cows fed the chopped hay produced slightly more milk than cows fed the long hay, despite the lower consumption of nutrients.

Warns Poultry Growers To Fight Lice, Mites

The battle against lice and mites starts with the really hot weather. R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agriculture agent has warned poultry growers. For lice one may use some material such as nicotine sulphate in very small amounts on the roosts at night. The house should be open and well ventilated. For mites the roosts and nests should be painted with some good wood preserving material. This painting should be done outside in the shade with the equipment moved into the sun afterward for drying.

Shade for the young stock is essential for growth, Swanson said. This can be provided by raising the colony house, erecting some sort of canopy or moving the colony house adjacent to a corn field.

Calumet County To Observe 50th Fair Anniversary

Historical Pageant Will be Feature of Annual Event

Chilton—The fiftieth anniversary of the Calumet county fair will be observed at the annual event this year at Chilton on Sept. 2, 3 and 4.

The first display of agricultural products on the order of a fair was held at Stockbridge in the early 70's. Later these fairs were transferred to what is now known as the village of Gravesville. In 1891 the fair was moved to what now is known as the Calumet county fairgrounds or Hobart park as the result of a gift of General Hobart of part of the land. The remainder was purchased by the Calumet County Agricultural association.

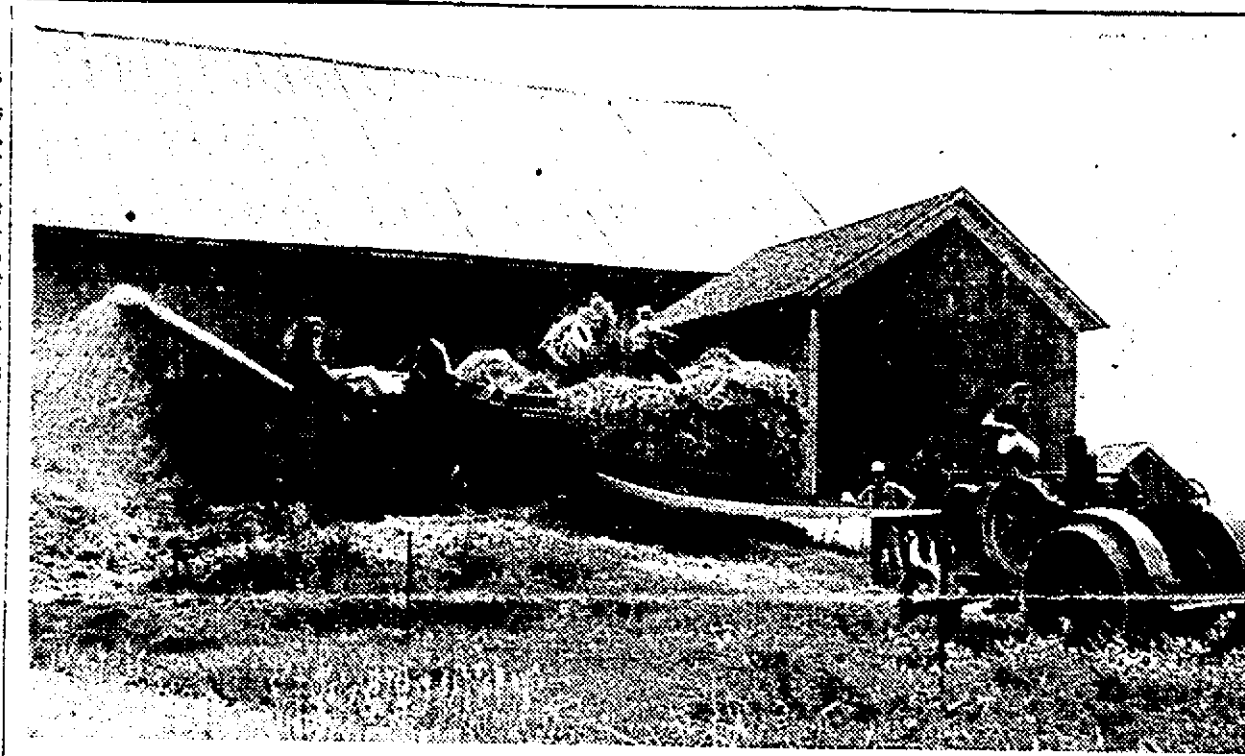

One of the outstanding events of the fair this year will be a transportation pageant. At a meeting of directors this week Oscar Kossow, Oscar Schaub, Eugene Wolf, George Doern, Anton Sevensch, George Rossmeyer, Fred W. Behnke, Nick Bruhl, Frank Pieper and Franklin Schneider were named as a committee to continue development of the pageant which will progress throughout the last 100 years.

In addition to this pageant parade, a special collection of agricultural implements, tools and Indian relics will be gathered for a special display.

Directors voted $400 for a harness racing program. The track is considered one of the finest half-mile running tracks in the state. Frank Anderson, proprietor of the local stables, and his assistant, Ralph Simms, have harness horses with a statewide reputation. John Cary, trainer and driver, says he is ready to meet the best state has to offer in way of competition.

President: Miss Gertrude Halloran, vice president: and Mrs. George Laird secretary-treasurer.

A lawn social will be held Aug. 17, on the grounds of Emmanuel Evangelical church in the town of Center. Henry Holz will be chairman of the event.

THRESHING SCENE ON VANDEN BUSH FARM

It's harvesting time in these parts and a Post-Crescent photographer took a spin out in the country the other day to see what was going on. He caught the above picture at the Martin Vanden Bush farm on Spencer road as a threshing machine, owned by Ralph Koehnke, worked on this year's crop of barley. The yield on the Vanden Bush farm runs about 50 bushels to the acre, which is good for this year. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Waupaca Lions Sponsor Motion Picture Plan Course in Of City to Raise Funds for Program Home Economics

Waupaca — "See yourself so others may see" might be the slogan for the Waupaca Lions club, whose members this week are going Hollywood, putting themselves and their town in motion pictures in a fun-making and fund-raising effort to help the club's eye-testing in the public schools here.

Miss Martha Linder, representing the Amateur Service Productions of Akron, Ohio, is here this week working with local Lions in selecting material for a movie of Waupaca and Waupaca people. The picture will be shown at the Palace theater here Aug. 18 and 19, after which the film becomes property of the club.

The get the kids-and-pets angle, Miss Linder has announced a pet parade at South park next Tuesday, with prizes to the cutest children and their pets. The cameraman was to arrive Friday and for officials, members of the Lions club coming out of the Delavan hotel Tuesday afternoon after their luncheon, business men at an association of commerce banquet at Grand View Monday night, children at the bathing beach, public buildings, street scenes, historic spots, scenic views, local celebrities.

Lions, who are busy in their assignments as movie directors, assistants, producers and cameramen's aids, plan to show the film here four times in the two day run, counting on enough general interest to produce a sizeable box office profit for the club's eye-testing program in the public schools here.

This permanent school-testing eyes of local grade school youngsters, purchase of glasses for needy children who cannot afford them, has been the most important and most worthy projects of any sponsored by Lions in Wisconsin.

"These tests are made for all youngsters as they get into the fourth and fifth grade — the age where reading constitutes a major part of the school work, where textbook type sets smaller and home work begins."

Green Bay Chief Kiwanis Speaker

Demonstrations of Fire Hazards are Given at Seymour Meeting

Seymour — R. H. Drum, chief of the Green Bay Fire department, was the speaker at the meeting of the Seymour Kiwanis club Tuesday evening. Slides of fire hazards of general nature and those which have caused serious fires in Green Bay were shown. A demonstration followed, showing how fires start from overloaded electric lines. Most homes, except those recently built or rewired, have but one circuit of electrical distribution and great danger arises because of poorly plugged or too strong fuses. With the addition of all electrical appliances in the home, old wiring is not heavy enough to carry the load and overheated wires start the fires. He advised that all fuses used carry the underwriters' approval.

A demonstration with fumes of gasoline was made, showing that such fumes do not get out of open windows but lower to the floor, the basement and even sewer openings. Naptha and gasoline cleaning should be done outside, after removing all rings from the fingers, the speaker said. A slight fit of static electricity caused by ring contact will cause an explosion even outside.

The British Attitude

London, Aug. 3.

Much has been said in recent months about the decline of British prestige, but in fact Great Britain is still by common consent the arbiter of Europe. There is little reason to doubt that Hitler, if he can restrain his followers, will do nothing now which he thinks will make Britain his open and avowed enemy, and it is of course certain that France will make no move which would leave her without Britain as an ally. For the near future, barring an explosive incident, the course of events in Europe depends upon the policy of Great Britain.

Since so much depends upon it, it is important to understand as fully as possible what is now determining British policy. One can easily be misled. For while it is easy enough to reach a fairly reliable impression of what the British are doing and easy to hear what they are saying, it is evident, it seems to me, that they have not yet made up their minds as to what they really think. They are acting, they are talking and they are anxiously meditating. They are acting on the theory that they are near to a war with Germany. They are talking on the theory that they may avert the war by a negotiated settlement with Germany. And they are asking themselves whether such a settlement is possible and they are wondering whether they should believe what they so much wish to believe.

They are living, so as to speak, at three levels, at the level of immediate action preparing for war, at the level of immediate diplomacy seeking an appeasement, and at the level of their ultimate convictions wondering what those ultimate convictions are going to be. The visitor in England is sure to be misled if he does not take into account at all times these three simultaneous and yet apparently contradictory elements of the British attitude.

Britain is Arming and Cementing Alliances

Thus if one looks first at what the British government has been doing, it is clear that since mid-winter Mr. Chamberlain has been taking important measures to prepare for war. There is first of all rearmament which has at least reached the point where all fear of Italy has disappeared and a knock-out blow by Germany is no longer practicable. There is next the sealing of what is in substance an alliance with France, an alliance not merely by diplomats but by the soldiers, sailors and aviators. Third, there has been the demonstration given in May, that Britain will go with France, a demonstration confirmed by the King's visit and by the bold expedient of sending Lord Runciman to Prague. And finally, there is the indefinite postponement of the Italian agreement because Mussolini has been unwilling, or perhaps unable, to supplement it by a reconciliation with France.

In a word, Britain is arming and is cementing her alliances. That is what nations do when they expect a war, and the concrete overt acts of the British government are based on that expectation.

Continue to Seek Ground for Reaching Agreement

But at the same time, and I think with equal determination, the British are refusing to act on the assumption that war is inevitable. So they continue on every possible occasion to extend their hands to Hitler seeking to find some ground on which to negotiate an agreement. There is no reason to doubt the sincerity of their diplomatic effort.

For the British, in spite of their appearance of calm and even of indifference, are a highly imaginative people. They have imagined with great clarity the devastating consequences of another war. They know that the war would be the most frightful known in human history, that it would be very long, and that it might degenerate in the end into a civil war of extermination over large areas of Europe and Asia. There is no doubt that they would pay almost any price to avoid war providing they could be persuaded that by paying the price they could avert war.

Feeling this way, they are bound to test every opportunity for negotiation. They must do this in the hope that the negotiation might succeed. And they must do it even if they fail, because they cannot be comfortable with their consciences until they are completely certain that they have tried everything. They will take great risks, even the risk of strengthening their potential enemies and of dividing and demoralizing their allies, in the hope of saving Europe from the supreme catastrophe.

Passing Through Inner Doubt As To Final Result

Thus Britain is sharpening her sword. Britain is extending the olive branch. And Britain is passing through an ordeal of inner doubt as to what will come of it all. The British are asking themselves the fundamental question whether in Hitler they are confronted by a mystic who would believe that his mission was achieved if he united all the Germans of central Europe, or whether he is another Napoleon who intends to lead the united Germans to the conquest of world supremacy.

The British parties are divided and individual Britons are divided in their own minds as to which of these two conceptions of Hitler is the true one. The so-called pro-Germans in the British ruling class have decided to act as if they were persuaded that Hitler can satisfy his ambitions in central Europe and then live at peace with the British empire. The others believe that Hitler's immediate objectives are only the means to the development of enough power to enable him to destroy the French Army and undo the humiliation of Scapa Flow.

Will Form Estimate From Hitler's Own Acts

Neither of the two theories can be proved conclusively at the present time. As the British are temperamentally against abstract theories in politics, they are keeping an open if exceedingly anxious mind and they are waiting to see. They are moreover accustomed to ruling in human affairs and this means that they do not take their facts at second hand. So they will form their final estimate of Hitler not from his enemies nor even from his propagandists nor even from Hitler's own words but from Hitler's own acts.

From the citadel of their armaments and of their French alliance they will try to reach an agreement with him that German ideals are to be pursued without further violence, and they will not conclude that Hitler is their mortal enemy unless by his own direct actions he forces them to reach that conclusion.

Girl Scouts Hold Circus Day at Park

An ingenious program of circus thrills and stunts which was in keeping with the circus day atmosphere yesterday entertained 40 girls at the fourth Girl Scout day camp held at Pierce park. Opening with a merry-go-round singing game followed by patrol relay races in which the girls were required to imitate the sounds and characteristics of circus animals, the day's activities also included the pantomiming of typical circus acts, modeling of animals in clay by the handcraft classes, an exhibit of stuffed animals by the campers and circus stories.

Patrol leaders elected for the day were Virginia Hedburg, Jean Gallaher, Mary Kettchenhofen, Eunice Nuoffer, Virginia Schrimpf and Jean Thompson. As in preceding days camps the girls received archery instruction, played games and worked at handicraft and outdoor cooking. The day was climaxed by a "big show" in which each patrol took part, presenting wild animal acts, freak shows, tumbling and a cleverly constructed thrill ride.

Leaders in charge of the camp yesterday were Miss Dorothy Calnin, local director, and the Misses Faith Frampton, Elizabeth Watson, Mary Keller, Mary Watson, Grace Watson, Margaret Puth, Peggy Ogilvie, Mary Koehne and Virginia Laeyendecker.

PREPARE FOR JUNIOR DANCE AT RIVERVIEW CLUB

Preparations for the junior dance at Riverview County club Monday night are keeping the younger members of the club busy this week. Cutting the ribbons which will be pinned to the lapels of the young men's coats to indicate that they have paid their admissions and checking the list of young people who usually come to the junior dances to make sure that all have received announcements of the event, these four girls were among those working at the club one day this week. Sitting at the table are Miss Jeanne Ruhlme, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ruhlme, 608 E. North street, and Miss Barbara Jennings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Jennings, 1121 E. North street. Standing back of them are Miss Jean Watson, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Watson, 12 Bellaire court, and Miss Adah Thuerer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. 100 Persons Attend Club Supper Party

PROBABLY the most popular of the weekly events at Riverview Country club this summer is the Thursday night buffet supper, which attracted a record crowd of 100 to the club last night. The informality of the supper and the added attraction of the contract bridge games which follow it make it an ideal way to spend a summer evening, and every member of the club who has out-of-town guests makes it a point to take them there Thursday night.

Last night there were guests from places as far apart as Pasadena, Calif., Wallingford, Conn., and Paris, France. The visitor from Paris was Irving Schweike, widely known music critic, who came as the guest of his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Walther, W. Prospect avenue. Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Harwood had as their guests, Mr. Harwood's sister, Mrs. George McDuffie, Pasadena, Calif., and Mrs. Harwood's nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Billings, Wallingford, Conn. Winners as the evening's bridge were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Root, first for north and south, and Charles Marston and R. A. Knapp, first for east and west. Second place went to Mr. and Mrs. Mark Callin, north and south, and Dan Courtney and Mrs. Gordon Deber, east and west, and third place to Mr. and Mrs. William Daniel, Xenia, north and south, and Gordon Deber and Mrs. Dan Courtney, east and west.

Miss Doris Koehnke, 1303 S. Oneida street, entertained the T. N. T. club yesterday at a swimming party at Crystal lake beach and a picnic at supper at Doty park, Neenah. Miss Hattie Vandenberg, Little Chute, will be hostess to the club next week.

Meeting yesterday at Elks hall, the Women's Relief corps of George D. Eggleston post, Grand Army of the Republic decided to hold a joint picnic with the Sunshine club Aug. 18 at Pierce park. A covered dish picnic supper will be served. In response to a request from Mrs. Josephine Versteren, city nurse, the corps voted to donate three layettes for city welfare work. The group also made plans for its next meeting scheduled for Sept. 1, when the past presidents of the corps will fill the officers' chairs. The present officers will have charge of the social hour.

Mrs. Ramona Schroeder, 1312 W. Washington street, was hostess to her bride club Thursday evening at her home. Miss Patricia Dinsmore, Oshkosh, was an out of town guest. Prizes were won by Mrs. Norman Copp, Mrs. Arthur Alesch and Miss Margaret Reitzner, Mrs.

Girls Usually Fail to Look Before They Leap

BY DOROTHY DIX

Travelers tell us of a tribe in Darkest Africa in which the women are only permitted to keep one eye open in the presence of men. Well, this is one more eye than girls keep open in the presence of men in this country. At least before marriage. For how else can you account for the many misfit marriages and the hordes of disgruntled wives except on the theory that women never even give the men they marry the once-over before they accompany them to the altar?

Total blindness is the only possible explanation for the men, before and after taking, are just the same. They look just the same. They act just the same way. They carry the same line of conversation. They have the same peculiarities and habits and say all of which tick out like a sore thumb, and the only way a girl can possibly keep from seeing them is to keep her eyes shut tight.

Women are such adepts at camouflaging that a man is virtually forced to buy a pig in a poke when he gets married. He never even knows whether his wife is a blonde or a brunette until he gets her home and she takes off her complexion and the hair dye begins to fade. Every girl before marriage is so mild and meek that butter wouldn't melt in her mouth, so a man has no chance to get a line on her real disposition.

Also, before marriage every girl underestimates the role of a man's ideal as to what he wants a woman to be. If he is athletic, she jumps miles over golf links, no matter how she loathes exercise. If he belongs to the intelligentsia, she develops enthusiasm for art and reads highbrow books that bore her to tears. If he is domestic, she buys a ruffled white apron and serves him angel food that she alleges she made with her own hands.

Not even Sherlock Holmes could see through the impenetrable disguise that a girl can slip on at a moment's notice, and so when a man discovers that his wife isn't in the least the sort of woman he thought he was marrying he has an alibi that will stand in any court.

But men take no such trouble to befool women as women do to befool men. They don't have to for one thing. For another, every man considers himself a matrimonial prize just as he is that any girl is lucky to get. So there he stands with all his faults thick upon him for her to see if she will only take a casual glance his way. And she is to blame, not he, if she doesn't like him when she looks him over after marriage.

That is what chills the sympathy in our hearts and makes us want to say: "Well, for goodness sake, where were your eyes?" when so many wives come to us with their tales of disillusion and disappointment in marriage. Mrs. A. waits that she and her husband have nothing in common, that he is ALL business and she is ALL soul. Mrs. B. beats upon her breast and declares her marriage is a failure because her husband is grumpy and grouchy and about as chaffy as a store dummy. Mrs. C.'s husband bores her to death. Mrs. D.'s is a stick-in-the-mud who never takes her anywhere. Mrs. E.'s is a tightwad. And so on and on through a long list of faults and blemishes that none of these ladies ever even suspected before marriage that their husbands had concealed about their persons.

But how can such things happen, one asks in bewilderment? After all, one does not marry a perfect stranger. How, then, is it possible for a woman to "keep company," as the phrase goes, with a man for months, sometimes for years, without finding out whether he is slothful in his dress; whether he has repulsive table manners; and many woe-begotten of these things; whether he is an intelligent and interesting companion; whether he is selfish and high-tempered and jealous; whether he is interested in the

Not So Easy To Arrive at Big Slam Bid

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The following hand was played this morning, shortly after midnight, in one of those delightful little home battles which encourage conversation still further into the night.

"South is a college professor with more education than intelligence. He reads your column every day but, in spite of that opportunity, he still is just an ordinary 'ban' player. He opened the bidding with one diamond. East and West were the wives in the case. West bid one spade. North, a mechanical engineer, jumped to four diamonds. East passed, and South said four no trump. West passed. North responded with five diamonds, and South said six diamonds, which ended the bidding. West led the king of spades, which was taken by declarer with the ace. The first lead of trumps showed a laydown for the grand slam. One of the ladies, who often has been accused of bidding too conservatively, remarked sarcastically: 'Why didn't you bid the grand slam, since you had a laydown for it?'

"Should North and South have bid the grand slam, and if so what should have been the bidding? Should North have bid only three diamonds first, so that he could have shown his partner his heart honors or his spade singleton before the bidding reached too high a level?"

"Yours very truly,
"Y. A. N."

Despite the fact that North-South had more combined values than were needed for thirteen tricks, the grand slam was not so easy to bid that they should have bid it. If I were Y. A. N., I would make a record of this deal and spring it on the sarcastic ladies about six months from now, giving them the North-South hands. If they fail to reach the laydown grand slam, the abused husbands should laugh long and loudly. Of course, I assume no responsibility in case the correct contract is reached."

However, it is true that expert bidding would be effective. To wit:

| South | West | North | East |
|------------|---------|------------|------|
| 1 diamond | 1 spade | 2 hearts | Pass |
| 3 clubs | Pass | 4 diamonds | Pass |
| 4 no trump | Pass | 6 diamonds | Pass |
| 7 diamonds | Pass | Pass | Pass |

The key bid is North's proper choice on the first round. Two hearts are more informative and more constructive than any diamond raise. South then makes the normal, forcing bid of three clubs. To this strong rebid, North obviously has the values for a better-than-preference jump raise in diamonds. South's four no trump is conventional, and North shows the agreed suit ace by jumping to six-odd. Now South certainly can visualize thirteen tricks. North made a free two heart bid, he gave a jump preference for diamonds, and finally showed the diamond ace. A loser in the combined hands becomes almost out of the question.

JELLY WITH THE MEAT

Dear Mrs. Post: When a mold of jelly is served with the meat course, one is expected to put the jelly on the bread and butter plate or on the meat plate.

Answer: On the meat plate.

SPOON WITHOUT A SAUCER

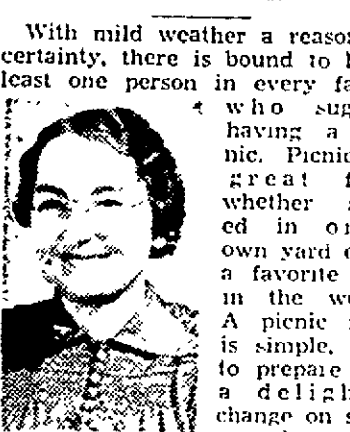

Dear Mrs. Post: Every summer I am in a quandry about the long-handled spoon called the iced tea spoon. Every one serves iced tea and coffee without anything under the glass to protect the table. So, the perennial question is what to do with the iced tea spoon while drinking iced tea. Some say it is proper to leave the spoon in the glass while drinking, others say no, and as for me, I think it very awkward to handle the spoon in the glass and try to drink at the same time. Won't you please settle this in your column.

Answer: I agree that it is a perplexing and rather annoying question to which the best answers I know are two. One: if you want to keep your spoon in order to stir the tea (or iced coffee) from time to time, then there is nothing to do but leave the spoon in the glass and hold it out of the way with your index finger (neither graceful nor comfortable). Therefore, two: if you have finished stirring your tea, you then lay the

"Picnic Menus"

With mild weather a reasonable certainty, there is bound to be at least one person in every family who suggests having a picnic. Picnics are great fun, whether served in one's own yard or in a favorite spot in the woods. A picnic meal is simple, easy to prepare and a delightful change on summer days.

Here are some suggestions for picnic menus, along with recipes for some of the food I am including recipes for two unusual and delicious breads, because they make for variety in sandwiches.

The blueberry bread is exceptionally delicious, and will appeal to the most weary appetite. The brown bread is very good served with baked beans. You will like the delicate gold cake with fudge frosting. It is easy to take on a picnic, as you can take it in the pan in which it is baked. These recipes are not only excellent for picnic meals, but may be served at any time. Add them to your recipe file and watch how many times you will be requested to repeat them.

Mr. Neighbor Says—

Newly set trees should be watched and buds which start at a point below where limbs are wanted should be rubbed off. This is called thumb pruning, and it can be kept up for two or three years. It is important to keep young trees, as well as shrubs set out this year, well watered. Not infrequently garden makers thoughtlessly hill up the earth around the base of newly set plants. This is a great mistake, because it sheds the water. A much better plan is to leave the earth in the form of a basin so that the water will be caught and held until it has time to seep through the earth and reach the roots.

In making a meringue for lemon pie when it is ready to put on, stir in two tablespoons of boiling water and meringue will not run. To each egg white use two heaping tablespoons of granulated sugar, one of boiling water and one-half a teaspoon of vanilla.

Adults Must Be Patient With Adolescent Child

BY ANGELO PATRI

Girls and boys of twelve often trouble their teachers and parents. At this age some of them begin to shed childhood and take on the beginnings of maturity. They are no longer children and they certainly are not grown up. They present the most astounding moods, the most mystifying behavior, are unaccountable in every way. This makes living with them, and teaching them, a burden and an anxiety.

Ilida is twelve, overgrown, so that she is bigger than any girl in the senior class, while she is still in Junior High. She is pretty and the boys like her. She loves pretty clothes and wears those of the older girls, but she won't have anything to do with the boys, and insists upon playing with dolls, hosts of dolls.

"But, my goodness, you're growing up. You don't want all these dolls any more. Give them away. Grow up."

"I don't want to grow up. Why should I give away my dolls? I love every one of them. I'd much rather play with them than with any of those silly boys and girls."

Just let her alone with the dolls and say no more about them. Help them to disappear by refusing to replace any, by neglecting to discover any that are lost, but be careful not to speak about them one way or the other. This sort of child will not grow out of the child stage of play although she has left some of its phases behind her. In time she will leave this one too.

Such children, boys and girls alike, are what we, for a shortcut, call lazy. They do not like to run errands, they hate to pick up after themselves. They leave whatever they have been using right where it fell and go their way. When they need it again they ask where it is and blandly look for one to recover it. Their rooms are a crowd's nest, so are their bureau drawers and their shelves. Leave them that way. The only way to teach them the need for order and care is to let them feel the inconvenience of disorder and confusion.

When such a child leaves his belongings about the living rooms it is right to impound them. When they leave their bedrooms in a mess it is right to leave them that way and have them put them in shape

Modern Parachutes

Steamships have life preservers, and airplanes have parachutes. They serve about the same purpose. Passengers (at least most of them) don't want to parachute to earth, but neither do steamship passengers care to use life preservers.

For my part I'd rather take my chances with a parachute than jump in the ocean with a life preserver.

Boxes Can Be Covered

Few closets have enough room to hold everything without the use of some extra boxes. Miss Amundson suggests reinforcing good boxes to make them last longer. She says that they are stronger and more attractive if covered with strong paper or inexpensive cloth in a color and design that will match the color scheme of the closet or bedroom.

If one is using paper for covering, the corners of the boxes should first be reinforced with strips of cloth pasted tightly across the corners. To keep the covers from flitting too lightly, it is well to reinforce the cover on the outside and the box itself from the inside. Miss Amundson points out.

Small patterns look better unless the box is very large, and it is always well to select colors that will not show soil very easily. A thing coat of shellac also helps to make a durable finish. The color of the boxes may serve to identify the contents, but it is also a good idea to paste labels on the outside of the boxes.

A pole placed lengthwise of the closet seems the best thing on which to put the hangers because there is more room to hang the clothes, they are better ventilated, and easier to select. A broomstick or a rod about one inch in diameter makes a good pole which can be mounted on brackets. However, care must be taken to have the pole placed far enough out from the wall so that the hangers will not touch the wall. Another precaution is to see that the pole is high enough to keep the clothes from dragging, but it should not be placed above easy reach.

Falling from such a height would mean an extremely fast fall if there weren't an open parachute above. A heavy object keeps falling faster and faster through the air. If it falls 16 feet in the first second, 10 seconds later it will sink about 335 feet in a second.

A parachute breaks the fall. The very name "parachute" means "guard against a fall."

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

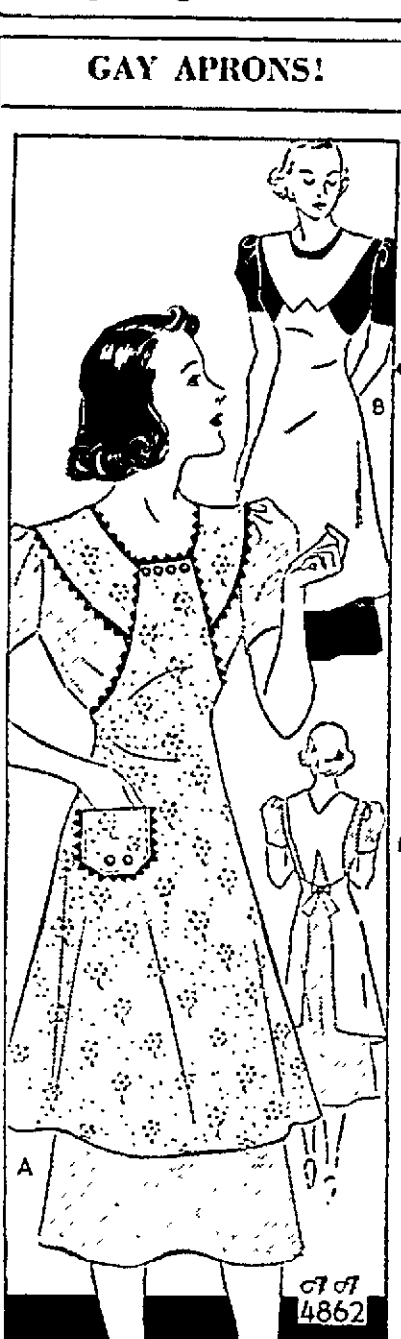

August with its sultry weather and heat is hard on feet in most sections of our country. Hot pavements or sands, even the high temperature, cause our feet to swell and perspire more than usual. During this month you must try to give your feet a little special attention.

The most important factors in the care of the feet are cleanliness and properly fitting shoes. It is a good idea to have your shoes a size larger and wider if you are to be confined to city or town during these muggy days.

Tender feet should be given a cold salt water treatment after the daily bath or shower. You might take a handful of table salt, rub your feet vigorously while your feet are still damp, then immerse them in cold water. Or you might just dip them into cold water in which has been dissolved a couple of handfuls of table salt or sea salt. After drying massage them well with a little mineral oil or olive oil. Leave it on all day. This means you must wash your feet well.

Special Treatment for Burning Feet

At the end of a hot day, when your feet refuse to serve you any longer, try this refreshing treatment. Apply a generous amount of mineral oil or olive oil on your feet. Work it into the skin gently for several minutes and then soak feet in soapy hot water. As hot as you can stand it. Brush your feet well and after drying thoroughly, rub them with a piece of ice wrapped in a towel. Pat them dry and dust with half and half mixture of ordinary starch and salicylic acid (which you may buy

Melons should be served ice cold. Do not try to chill them by filling them with chopped ice. Chill the melon thoroughly in the refrigerator and serve it as quickly as possible after it is cold. You may put a little ice around the outside, if you like, to help keep it chilly.

Always store matches in a covered tin box or pail—out of reach of small children and away from heated pipes or stoves. Be sure your matches are extinguished before you discard them. Never light matches in closets, garages or poorly-ventilated places.

Old Gardener Says:

Many garden makers complain at this time that the leaves of their Bechtel crab apple trees are covered with orange colored spots which disfigure them and cause them to drop. Some other crab apples are attacked, but the very ornamental Bechtel variety is, of course, the one most commonly grown. Unfortunately, little can be done to check the trouble now. It is caused by the presence somewhere within a mile or two of cedar trees, which harbor this disease and from which the spores are carried by the wind. If the sources of infection cannot be

❖ Love on the Range ❖

THE STORY SO FAR

Someone is trying to smash the Rafter T by every means possible. Going by the name of Streeter, "Blur" Ankrum takes a job there to help lovely Lee Trone. Betty Struthers gets on the ranch under false pretenses. She makes a play for Ankrum which puts him in bad with Lee. Ratchford, the sheriff, tells Ankrum that Claydell, a neighboring rancher, wants the Trone's land because a railroad is going through.

Chapter 21

THE NET TIGHTENS

Ankrum's glance beat against Ratchford speculatively. A blur of motion off to one side caught his attention. It was Betty walking hurriedly toward the house. He turned his glance back on the sheriff and caught the tag end of a scowl being ironed from the beefy cheeks. "What are you figuring to do about it?"

"Do? There ain't nothing" that I can do—yet. I've got to wait till Claydell comes out into the open. He's a slick one; he'll be right careful not to tip his hand."

"Must have tipped it already. You got onto him."

"I got onto him, yeah. But from another angle. Claydell ain't tipped nothin' an' likely won't. Trone's due to have his hair lifted."

Ankrum's brows raised slightly. "If you think that, why don't you go something? Ain't that what you're packing that star for?"

"Listen," Ratchford said. "A sheriff can't act until a crime's been committed. When a crime's been this ranch I'll have an' believe me, I'll see that he gets the limit! I'm bettin' he's the backbiter that's spreadin' these yarns about me bein' out to even up with Trone."

"What have you done about that Dream killing?" Found the fellow that fired the shot ye?"

The sheriff's heavy lips curled grimly. "I won't have to go very far to put my hands on him."

"That's interesting," Ankrum said. "I never did cotton to the sort of hombies that start their smokin' when a fellow isn't lookin'. When you're ready to go after him, let me know. I'd like to lend a hand."

Ratchford's eyes stared back unblinking. "I'll see that you're around."

"By the way, have you heard any more about that gun man, Bander-a, you was telling me about?" Ankrum asked.

Ratchford nodded with what seemed to Ankrum an odd reluctance. "Yeah. He's not only arrived. Streeter, but he's bedded down snug as an old houn' down with Claydell."

Ankrum's muscles suffered. If this were true, it would account in part for Ratchford's thinking Claydell the power behind the things that were happening here. In fact, if this were true it might well be that the sheriff was right in thinking Claydell the man who was out to smash the Rafter T. And if Claydell was the man, it was high time something was done to put a bar to his activities; it was time steps were taken to bring him into the open. Prangy here was something to think about!

"What did you say more gun?" Claydell is figuring a railroad coming through here."

Ratchford grinned. "I didn't say."

But I don't mind tellin' you I got at a couple of his men—higher-ups. He's not only figuring on a road comin' through here, but aims to build a town not half a mile out side this valley. His idea is that a railroad will make it boom. He plans to have a bank, two or three good-sized saloons, ten or twelve stores, corrals and shipping pens, chutes and squeeze. With a town like that taking his orders he'll be good as a king in this section. He's got vision an' a hell of a lot of nerve. He'll smash Trone flatterin' a pancake—he's got to have this ranch.

Feeling Of Resentment

"You tell it good."

"I'm tellin' you the truth!"

"What's he want the valley for?"

"I never said he did. I said he was to alter the ranch, an' I mean enlargin'."

"Yeah. He'll be wantin' this valley though, as much if not more than any other part."

Ratchford's heavy features wrinkled in a scowl; there was perplexity in his glance. "Why?"

It was Ankrum's turn to smile. "Because if Claydell's aimin' to build a town when—and it—the railroad builds through this ranch, he'll be smart enough to see that this valley here will control one hell of a big section of this range!"

"How do you figure that?"

Ankrum's teeth flashed wider. "Water!" he said it coldly.

The sheriff put a hand to his forehead and sent a roving glance out over the valley from rim to distant rim. There was a strange light in his smoky eyes when he turned them back on Ankrum. "You're right," he admitted softly. "I hadn't thought of that."

Ankrum, looked toward the house, saw Trone and Lee come out upon the veranda. Trone beckoned him curtly. Ankrum left the sheriff and strode out into the sunlight that filled the ward. He saw Lee wave and knew the gesture was for Ratchford and saw her coming toward him. They passed in the center of the yard. Ankrum would have attempted to make some explanation of the scene she had witnessed in the bunkhouse, but she passed him with lifted head and eyes that were filled with scorn.

A feeling of resentment welled up within him, not at Lee, but at the tricks of fate. At Ratchford, too, for he was becoming more and more friendly. As he stood by the veranda, a passionate hatred of Tom Ratchford burned in his eyes on Ankrum. He wished that it were Ratchford instead of Claydell who was out to smash the Rafter T. A wicked desire was burning through him to cross that with the burly sheriff. Nothing he felt would give him so much pleasure as sight of that heavy figure pressing forward in the dust.

He paused in the veranda steps, looking up at Tom. "Excellent."

"You had it made."

"But I didn't," his voice was curt. "What have you done about findin' these rustlers of mine?"

"Nothing I can do, now. They've got your beef and they're out shed. I told you how they were workin'."

Complete Plans for BDM Meet Aug. 11

Play Will Start as Early As 11:30 in the Morning
SEEK MORE CADDIES

Rough to be Cut Close. Caddies Stationed At Water Holes

MEMBERS and guests attending the annual invitational tournament at Butte des Morts golf club next Thursday will be able to commence playing as early as 11:30 a. m., it was announced at a meeting of the tournament committee chairman last night. To make this starting hour possible, lunch service will begin at 11 a. m. To further prevent jams along the fairways, the golf committee, headed by Orville K. Ferry, is completing arrangements to station caddies at water hazards and other strategic points along the course. Fourcous will be started at intervals of six minutes from both number one and number ten tees. To reduce the time spent looking for lost and strayed golf balls in the various roughs, the Butte des Morts grounds crew will trim the long grass. Greens will be "toughened up" to equalize this aid to golf scores.

Seek More Caddies
Caddies will be issued special instructions for the tournament, and the golf committee is already looking for additional caddies to handle the crowd. The boys will be requested to keep the newly sodded traps free from foot prints. Dinner will be served beginning at 5:30 Thursday afternoon and will be followed by the awarding of prizes at 8 o'clock. Among the major prizes will be one for low gross score, one for low net score and one important good fellowship prize. A large number of lesser prizes will also be awarded. David Smith, chairman of the reservation committee, has requested that members who have lost or misplaced reservation cards make their reservations by telephone. His committee consists of T. F. Frohman, Menasha, and F. A. Semmelhack, Appleton.

Fans Rush Over to Lou Ambers' Side

Sudden Reversal of Opinion on Lightweight Battle Remarkable

NEW YORK.—(P)—The fight game has seen nothing in years like the sudden reversal of opinion that makes Lou Ambers a curly wolf with long claws and gives Henry Armstrong very much the short end of the stick when it comes to comparing them for their bout for Lou's lightweight crown. The fine Italian hand of Michael Strauss Jacobs, the promoter, may be behind all this but again it may be just the evenness of the prize, or to this when Lou was getting ready for a big fight the air was filled with dire predictions such as "why, he'll be murdered." Now, as he readies himself for one of the toughest men in the business, the boys, from Benny Leonard to the merest pre-fight fighter, have decided he is going to pull a real upset and beat the Little Perpetual Motion at the Polo Grounds Wednesday night. One of the better minds hold out against the Armstrong stock, to the theory he shares with Professor Albert Einstein, Smushky Jackson and other noted scientists. Stripped of technical verbiage it is: "I will knock this guy stiff in anywhere from seven to ten heats." The truth remains that Ambers never has looked better than out at Madame Bey's in Summit, N. J., these last two weeks. Henry the Hammer has encountered one or two annoying mishaps in training. He has a cut lip and a cut cheek and he has to wear a mask in training that makes him look like Boris Karloff in reel six.

3 to Play Off Tie in Legion Golf Tourney

Waukesha—(P)—Three leading Wisconsin amateur golfers, Max Shuman, and Jeff Power of Milwaukee, and Clarence Horning of Fond du Lac, were scheduled today to play off a tie for the state American Legion golf trophy in the 12th annual tourney being played on Merit Hills Country Club links. The trio led an all-time record field of 108 entrants yesterday to wrap up with 70. They will play 18 holes today to decide the champion.

B. A. Solera, Racine, and Dewey Slocum, Milwaukee, finished with 76.

Milwaukee Cudworth post won the W. W. Lanza team trophy with a five-man total of 404 strokes. Others in order were Waukesha 411; Milwaukee Bay View, 424; Racine, 425; and Milwaukee North Shore, 440.

McPhail Makes Money but Giants Refuse Night Game

NEW YORK—(P)—The young man boning up on his baseball history 10 years from now likely will find the name of Leland Stanford MacPhail plastered all over the pages. The sharp dresser is doing more to baseball than the average fan realizes now. The student a decade hence will learn that the game was invented by Abner Doubleday in 1839 and given a transformation by Larry MacPhail 99 years later after a terrific tussle with the old guard. The student will be mildly surprised to learn there was a time when big league ball was played exclusively in the hot afternoons and there was absolutely no extra-added entertainment, like foot races, pre-game band concerts and fireworks displays. He will wonder how the old guard could have been so stupid as to have opposed the red-haired live-wire in his efforts to rejuvenate the pastime and make lots of money for all the magnates, some of whom hadn't turned a profit in a coon's age.

And don't think that MacPhail isn't being fought. The Brooklyn, under his talented aegis, have drawn 153,288 customers to five night games against Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Boston, Chicago and St. Louis. That means the Dodgers are paying off that fat mortgage and will have a bundle of money to spend for good players next season.

Yet the Giants still won't give them a tumble after dark. When MacPhail asked Bill Terry the other day if he hadn't changed his mind about giving the game a few thrills, the Giants boss retorted he wasn't managing a semi-pro team, or words to that general effect.

CLOSE SEASON AT KAUKAUNA PARK SUNDAY

Half a Plantation, $2,500 Stakes in Golf Marathon

CHICAGO—(P)—J. Smith Ferebee, young La Salle street investment broker, set out over four courses today for one of the nation's richest golf stakes—$2,500 and an additional half interest in a $30,000 Virginia plantation. At the crack of dawn, Ferebee snatched a ball down the fairway of the Olympia fields course, scene of the recent Chicago open tournament, and started his marathon play. During the 15 hours between sunrise and sunset, Ferebee hopes to complete 144 holes of golf, twice over each of the four courses, making a score of 95 or less for each 18 holes. If his score goes over 95 for any one of the rounds he loses the plantation. The estate, which is in Princess Anne county, Va., between Norfolk and Virginia Beach, was purchased for $30,000 two years ago by Ferebee and Fred Turk.

Couldn't Agree
Ferebee said he and Turk could not agree on the management, neither wanted to buy out the other, and neither wanted to go to court. So the wager was made.

"About a month ago I played 90 holes one day," the husky, 31-year-old broker chuckled, "and I'm confident I can do 144 holes. Fred bet his half share of the 2,400-acre tract against my half share, that I couldn't do it. Other friends put up $2,500 additional."

To win, Ferebee must walk at least 29 1/2 miles. Some golfers, with a flare for mathematics, say he will have to swing 700 times, which is at the rate of five strokes every two minutes, or 24 seconds to the stroke. That's figuring on the basis of 95 for each round. The eight rounds measure 51,568 yards.

Ferebee will eat and drink "on the run." A physician will accompany him most of the way.

Max Rosenbloom In Final Fight

Meets Bob Pastor Tonight; Latter Heavy Favorite to Cop

Hollywood, Calif.—(P)—A clever old man who fought 360 professional bouts in 15 years and won most of them — Max Rosenbloom — meets clever young Bob Pastor in a 10-round bout at Gilmore Stadium tonight.

A near capacity crowd of 30,000 persons was predicted for the match, which the 4-year-old, bald-headed Rosenbloom insists will be his last ring appearance.

For Rosenbloom, always the possessor of a flare for theatricals in the ring and out, plans to give himself entirely to his conics hereafter. He has been playing character roles in pictures and is an entertainer at a night club bearing his name.

The odds were 10 to 3 that Pastor would win. There were many who thought the 23-year-old New Yorker, whose chief bid to fame is the fact he stayed the limit against Joe Louis, current heavyweight champion, might score one of the few knockouts recorded against Slapsie Maxie.

Rosenbloom will hold a weight edge of approximately seven pounds, going into the ring at around 190.

Chaffin Chaffer

By Gordon R. McIntyre

IT would appear that this particular scribe is eating crow as concerns Northern State league baseball and what's more he's liking it. He has to.

Some several weeks ago we rattled off a few lines to the extent that Northern State league baseball was rather unsound because the smaller teams couldn't meet the bill required of the high priced clubs they were putting on the field. Further, we said that Green Bay was loading up with Hopkinsville, Ky., talent and could pay the freight and probably would make a runaway of the race.

But for the last two weeks or more Green Bay has been reposing in a most beautiful manner at the bottom of the heap and Seymour, the smallest city in the league, and Clintonville, are on the top. If that isn't making us eat crow, we don't know.

Frankly, we expected Green Bay to take things easy during the first round and crash through with a bang in the second. We also expected Seymour to find the bills hard to meet but apparently the northern city folks have a red-hot following or a couple angels. Clintonville has pretty much of a home talent club and a place to find jobs and has a big following.

But while we eat our crow we still feel that the setup isn't so hot, that there's something wrong some place and it'll have to be remedied if baseball is to continue. The Kaukauna-Kimberly game the other evening at Kaukauna should have drawn a packed house for it was a natural, or supposed to be. Instead it was one of the poorest crowds of the season.

The only thing that has saved Green Bay at the gate has been traveling teams; the folks go for that stuff and stay home from league games. Two Rivers cleaned house after the Seymour debacle and we wonder what the Manitowish folks will say about the apparent comedy staged by the Ships at Clintonville last night.

Whether the Northern State league knows it or not, John Coppes is positive he was right in his charges that the loop errand when it forced the playoff of first round games after the round was over. And John's proof is the fact that the league altered the constitution immediately after his resignation was accepted. He contends the only reason the playoff was demanded was that the boys didn't like Kaukauna.

Jack Nussbaum, basketball coach, and Lee Miller, football coach, are going to a coaching school at Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 8 to 13, with the Oshkosh board of education paying a part of their expenses. That's a suggestion for the Appleton board—that probably never will be received.

Clifford Dilts, Shawano High school coach and formerly at St. Mary, Menasha, apparently has pulled a boner that he won't forget for a long long time. Because he can't be athletic director, he has refused the Green Bay West High school coaching job. All of which means he's probably "buttoned up" as far as Valley conference schools are concerned from now on.

The name of Clem DeYoung, catcher, was inadvertently omitted from the members of the Beaver Taverns in the squad picture yesterday on this page. A member of the squad wrote down the names and missed Clemmy and the error was not discovered until too late. Sorry, Clem.

2 Games Sunday In County Loop

Creekers at Hortonville And Shiocton at Greenville Grange

| Black Creek | 1 | 3 .250 |
| Greenville Grange | 0 | 4 .000 |

Only two games are scheduled for Sunday in the Outagamie County league, Black Creek at Hortonville and Shiocton at Greenville Grange. The other contest, Dale at Greenville Merchants, has been postponed to a later date.

Shiocton will go after and probably obtain its fifth straight win at Greenville Grange. The latter hasn't won a game during the second round. Last week it bowed to Dale by an 11 to 0 count while Shiocton was staging a rally to nip Hortonville by a 9 to 8 score.

Sabrowsky will get the pitching assignment for Shiocton with McDermott catching. The Grange probably will use Kuzenski on the mound.

Black Creek at Hortonville should be a toss-up. The Creekers have only one win this round but they have a good team. Hans Miller will do the pitching and Le Capitaine will be behind the plate. Hortonville will depend on Freddie Buchman and Omholt.

Delavan Boat Ahead In Regatta Points

Oconomowoc—(P)—C. B. Goes of Delavan piloted his Pike VII to a lead in point standings today over the rest of the field in the Inland Lakes Yachting association's invitational Class C regatta.

Pike VII amassed a high point total by finishing second in two races yesterday, in addition to having a previous second and fourth place.

The first race yesterday, over a 10-mile Oconomowoc lake course, was won by the Acolus of Pine Lake, skippered by H. A. Nunne, macker of Milwaukee, in one hour, 9 minutes and 50 seconds. Walter Ketter of Milwaukee, sailed Cheerio II of Pine Lake to a victory over a 12-mile course in the second race in 1:43:23.

Both races were sailed in a light southeasterly breeze. In the second event the Fleur De Lys, an Oconomowoc lake club entry skippered by Marion M. Chester of Milwaukee, capsized near the finish line.

Friday—Paper Institute versus Mellow Brews.

WITH Rollie Choudoir setting the pace with two home runs and driving in another, Forster Taverns won their fifth straight game in the American City league when they defeated the Menasha Merchants by a 5 to 3 score.

Choudoir went bat three times, scored three runs and got three hits.

George Swamp worked for the winners and allowed six hits, fanned three and walked none.

Paveletzke opposed him and gave up five hits, fanned four and walked two. Choudoir and O. Kirk doubled for the winners and West-emberger and Dulux for the losers.

Choudoir opened the game with a homer into right in the first frame. He scored the next run the next time to bat in the third when he hoisted a high fly to left which the outfielder just touched on the dead run.

Forsters got their third marker in the fourth when O. Kirk led off with a line drive down the right field foul line for a double. He went to third on a pop pitch and scored on Hiebel's pop foul to Stepanski who tossed to the plate with time to spare but Kirk slid under Resch for a run.

Merchants Tie Score
Menasha tied the score in the fifth. Hildebrandt led with a double, was safe at second when Wisnet threw late to second on Paul's grounder, and both scored on Dulux's long double to left center. Dulux went to third when Wisnet missed the throw from the outfield and scored on a fly to left.

Choudoir then won the ball game for the Forsters in the latter's half of the fifth. Kirk led with a pop fly ball of second that fell for a hit and scored from first when Hildebrandt, playing too deep, came in fast after Choudoir's hit and it went past him for a double.

Choudoir went to third on the throw to the plate and counted when Resch attempted to nip him off third and he scooted home instead of back to the base.

Clintonville 11, Manitowish 5.

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Green Bay at Seymour (10 a. m.).
Kaukauna at Manitowish.
Clintonville at Two Rivers.
New London at Kimberly (night).

BY JAMES BOHR
CLINTONVILLE—Last night under the Clintonville lights the Truellers continued their championship drive and defeated the Manitowish Shipbuilders, 11 to 5. It was a wide open game with both teams hitting the ball and scoring almost at will. Manitowish opened fire in the first inning when it got two runs on two hits but the Truellers came back and scored two runs on 4 hits.

In the second inning Manitowish, not satisfied that Clintonville scored two runs, came back with a third run but again the Truellers scored a run to tie at 3-all. In the third inning the Truellers again scored two runs and added one more in the fourth. Clintonville staged its big rally in the sixth inning when it scored five more runs to bring its final tally to 11. The Shipbuilders counted their last two runs in the eighth inning on three hits.

Everybody Hits
Altogether there were four triples and five doubles which shows that it was a wide open free-for-all with everybody hitting the ball. Ty Seel, second baseman for the Truellers, celebrated his nineteenth birthday yesterday and climaxed it with a double and a triple.

Butch Kohls provided all the amusement that was necessary. Kohls started to pitch but after the Truellers scored too many runs off him he took over the catching duties and his good natured temperament and joking with the players had the fans in an uproar.

Finally Kohls figured he had too much for the day so he retired in favor of a young catcher by the name of Woody who worked very well.

Sunday the Truellers journeyed to Two Rivers and on next Thursday will meet Seymour in the crucial battle of the Northern State league.

Lutheran Second Team Wins to Tie For First Place

Defeats No. 1 Squad, 15 To 6, in Senior Men's League

| Senior Men's League | |
|---------------------|-------|
| Standings | W. L. |
| Edison | 5 2 |
| Lutheran Team 2 | 5 2 |
| Plywood | 5 2 |
| Lutheran Team 1 | 4 3 |
| Borden | 4 3 |
| Methodist Men | 2 6 |

New London — The Lutheran No. 2 team met to be crowned by the league's leading Edison team, defeated the Lutheran team No. 1, 15 to 6, Thursday night to gain a tie for first place in the senior men's league.

In the first inning the Lutheran team No. 2 turned on the heat to take a 3 to 6 lead. The Lutheran team No. 1 played air-tight ball for two innings and put on a rally in the fourth to push across four runs and take the lead for the first time. This seemed to be the incentive that the No. 2 team needed and they came back to score two runs in their half of the fourth, five in the fifth, one in the sixth and four in the seventh while holding their opponents scoreless.

M. Schroeder and Matka hit home runs for the winners and Krueger hit a triple and Arnold hit three for the losers. The batteries for the two teams were Krueger and Urban for the team No. 1, and Boese and Luft for team No. 2.

Plywood Team Wins
The Plywood team served notice on the leaders in the senior men's league last night by whacking out 27 hits off pitcher, G. Wells to defeat Borden by the lopsided score of 15 to 6.

At no time during the entire game were the slugging Plywood players in any danger. The Borden team collected 15 hits, but was not able to capitalize on their chances. Kroll, the winning pitcher, got into plenty of trouble but bore down in the pinches behind the steady catching of Barlow. Wells who is usually a steady dependable pitcher could not seem to cope with the slugging Plywood club and G. Zaig, his catcher, could not seem to get into top form.

Gunderson led the winning team at bat with a double and four for four, while two of his teammates collected four out of five. For the losers Savall hit a home run and Fellenz collected three hits out of four times at bat.
